ERNEST DAWE, AGED 3, FATALLY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE ON CITY STREET; LIVES HOUR AND HALF

Struck by Automobile Driven
By S. C. Moser on West
Thayer Street Late in the Afternoon, Rib Piercing
His Lung—Driver Rushed
Boy to Hospital, But Little Fellow Never Regained Consciousness.

LAST RITES FRIDAY

The life of Ernest Marshall Dawe, 3-year-old son of Archie Dawe, mechanic for the Corwin Motor Company, was snuffed out under the wheels of an automobile late yesterday afternoon. Struck about 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon the little fellow died in the Bismarck hospital an hour and a half later, at 6 o'clock. His lung had been pierced by a rib.

The automobile which struck the boy was driven by S. C. Moser, baker at the McKenzie hotel, who was out riding with his wife and little girl. It happened at Thayer street, opposite the Dawe residence at 20 Thayer.

A coroner's inquest is expected to attempt to fix responsibility for the accident. R. H. Dodds, who tried the brakes on the car that hit the 100 feet to stop the car going at 18 to 20 miles an hour, that the foot brakes were defective and the emergency brake held only on one wheel.

Eagerness of the little fellow to bid his father good-bye again before he went to work led to the accident. Ernest had been playing in the yard with Jackie Dodds. Ernest saw his father turn the corner, and then he boy-like set out to catch him. The two little fellows crossed the street when Ernest's mother called him. They started back. As the automobile approached the Dodds boy heard a cry of his mother and turned quickly back, while the little Dawe boy was struck in the body by the automobile. He was hurled to one side, the car not passing over his body. Mr. Dawe had turned the corner, and did not know of the accident until he got down town and a doctor who met him said he had an emergency call to his house.

Drives to Hospital
Those who saw the accident and Mr. Moser and his wife were thrown into panic after the accident for a moment. Mrs. Moser left the car hysterical. The driver, also shaken, went back to the boy, picked him up and rushed him to the hospital, a physician being summoned immediately. The boy lingered on for an hour and a half, but with no hope of recovery, and never regaining consciousness.

The boy's mother was prostrated by the accident. Mr. Dawe said that his information was that the car which struck his son was not going very fast. Mr. Moser, he understood, had his car only a short time and had not used it on a very much. Mr. Moser, he said, drove the boy to the hospital alone, holding him in one arm as he drove, expressed great sorrow over the accident to the bereaved family and offered all assistance possible.

Chief of Police Martinsen, States Attorney Allen and Coroner Gobel visited the scene of the accident, interviewing witnesses and taking measurements. The former estimated that the car ran 50 to 60 feet after striking the boy.

Shes Attorney Allen said a test was made at the place by officers with a car. The spot, he said, was where car went up one hill and down another. He said it took about 30 feet to stop the test car going at moderate speed.

Coroner Gobel called a coroner's jury to meet late this afternoon for an inquest in the case.

Mrs. Dawe last night was at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Kelley. The deceased boy was the fourth generation of the family. His grandmother, Mrs. Clara Johnson, is in California and is expected home soon. Mrs. Mary Martinsen is a great grandmother. Ernest would have been three years old next week, on May 20, Mr. and Mrs. Dawe have one other child, Wesley Leonard, aged six years.

Mr. Moser's Version
Mr. Moser, explaining his version of the accident, said that he was driving toward the downtown district with his wife and child. He saw two little boys on the boulevard, he said. One started as if to cross the street, and then stopped. Mr. Moser said he put on the brakes when he saw the boy go into the street, and then when the boy stopped he appeared to swing on his past and he put on a little gas. The boy, he said, then ran into the street and in front of the car. Mr. Moser said he swerved the car but it seemed to him as if the boy ran square into the car.

He said he had had the car only a week, but that he was an experienced driver, and had driven autos in several large cities, and said he was traveling only a few miles per hour at the time. He said he and his family felt exceedingly sorry that

"SVENGALI EYES" RULE ITALY Whole Nation Seems to Feel Mussolini's Orbs

BENITO MUSSOLINI AND HIS SVENGALI-LIKE EYES.

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS.
NEA Service Writer.

Rome, May 16.—In Benito Mussolini, prime minister of Italy, a strange new kind of Svengali? And is Italy playing the role of Trilby—an entire nation under the spell of this strange man's eyes?

Tonight I interviewed Mussolini and I confess I am inclined to believe this more than half true. From the moment I entered his amazing office in the new Foreign Affairs Building here, I had this feeling, a sensation I remember having only once before. That was when I interviewed Mme. de Tiesbe, the celebrated succubus of Paris, now dead, in her mysterious room hung all round with black velvet and lighted only by the glow from crystal globes used in his practice of Black Magic.

I have interviewed kings and emperors, presidents and princes, premiers, dictators and all manner of men and women, but Mussolini impressed me as none of these impressed me.

He's "Different" Statesmen.
I mean he is different from any statesman I ever saw, as different as night from day. I have talked with political leaders whose profundity impressed me more whose ideas seemed to me to be fundamental, more sound and in whose hands I would prefer to see placed the destiny of my own land.

But I have seen none other anything like Mussolini, the man with the hypnotic eyes, "black magic" statesman of Italy, the man who stares at the citizens of his country from king on down the line, and they all sing to his bidding—like Svengali made Trilby sing in the romance which everyone has read.

Does Mussolini realize his hypnotic power? He must. The first thing that met my eyes as I came ashore at Brindisi, was down in southern Italy, was a billboard picture of the Fascist leader, a picture so extraordinary that it held me spell-bound until I could make out what it was all about. The head was inclined forward just a trifle and from under beetling brows two enormous black eyes, the whites showing all round, huge, exaggerated eyes that stared straight at you and entered and through you precisely, like the hypnotic stage pictures of Wilton Lukauy as Svengali.

Pictures Seen Everywhere.
All over Brindisi I kept finding myself sniped at from the ambush of every fence and wall by those two orbs. I could well imagine the effect this might have on the ignorant and less sophisticated peasants of the country.

My sole object in coming to Italy was to see and talk with the remarkable owner of those eyes—the man who had turned Italy, almost overnight, into an armed camp ready to do his bidding—the man who marched on Rome with a powerful army at his back and "took" it without firing a shot, took it and forced the king to do his will, the man who dissolved Parliament and made his word supreme.

For that is what Mussolini did and nobody is more keenly aware of this fact than Mussolini himself.

He openly boasts that he has, but to wave his hand and 100,000 "Black Shirts"—Fascist soldiers—will snap into action and obey his slightest word.

PETTIBONE APPEALS CASE

Demands Share of Profits in Land Deal with Tuttle

L. C. Pettibone of Dawson has appealed to the supreme court his case against Wm. P. Tuttle, wealthy Chicagoan and former resident of Dawson, in which he claims profits on land transactions which might under the purported agreement and circumstances, approximate $750,000. Pettibone alleged that about 1911, when Mr. Tuttle came to Dawson, partly because of domestic difficulties, they discussed possibilities of profit in land speculation, and that as a result they purchased some land in western North Dakota, including 11,580 acres in Billings county. Under the agreement, he said, Tuttle was to purchase the land and Pettibone was to receive one-fourth of the profits for his activities and advice. The land, purchased for $4.50 an acre, has increased in value to $25 an acre, Pettibone maintained.

In his case heard by Judge Nussle in district court he asked that the partnership he said existed be dissolved and the land sold and division made. Judge Nussle held that there was no question but that plaintiff performed many valuable services in various ways, that Tuttle did agree to pay him one-fourth of the profits and that large profit did accrue, but held that not anything in the nature of a partnership had been proved. From this decision Pettibone appeals.

GEORGE GOULD, U. S. RAILROAD MAGNATE, DIES

Succumbs From Attack of Pneumonia at His Villa
Near Mentone, France

MANAGED FORTUNE

Assumed Responsibility of Handling $80,000,000
Estate of Father

Mentone, France, May 16.—George Jay Gould, the American financier, who has been ill at Cape Martin here for sometime, died at 3 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Gould was stricken with pneumonia at his villa on March 20. For several days his condition remained critical but he rallied and on April 3 was said to be out of danger. Three weeks later he suffered a relapse and on May 3 took a turn for the worse.

The end came peacefully. Mr. Gould's wife and two children were at his bedside.

Mr. Gould, financier and railroad man, succeeded to the leadership of the famous Gould family upon the death of his father, Jay Gould, December 2, 1892.

In addition to assuming responsibility, as trustee and executor, for the $80,000,000 estate left by his father, he carried on and expanded the great railroad holdings of the latter, and within a few years, during which he applied the lessons learned from the elder Gould, he became one of America's foremost railroad financiers. The 6,000 miles of road left by Jay Gould grew into more than 20,000 miles under the management of his son, while the many investments in other huge enterprises, including the Western Union Telegraph Company, all were largely managed by the principal heir.

George Jay Gould was born in New York City February 6, 1861, the youngest son of Major Nathaniel Gould, of Gold, the original ancestor, who came from the south of England in 1646 and settled in Fairfield, Conn. While many of Nathan Gould's descendants attained eminence in colonial affairs and through service in the Revolutionary War, it remained for Jay Gould to become the first financier.

Elder Gould's Fortune
The Gould family fortune dates from 1860, when Jay Gould, a partner in his father's hardware store in Delaware county, New York, bought for $100,000 the Erie Railroad, a controlling interest in the Rutland and Washington railroad, a little bankrupt line running between Troy, New York and Rutland, Vt. Young Gould, in addition to selling hardware, had studied surveying in his spare time, and took an interest in railroad building as a result of these studies.

Two years after purchasing the road, Jay Gould had succeeded in extricating it from financial difficulties, whereupon he sold the 120 miles of line for $1,200,000. This was the first feat of that genius, which, over and over in later life made him the foremost railroad developer of his time.

George Jay Gould, even when quite young, showed an inclination to follow in the footsteps of his father. He received a thorough education from private instructors, and subsequently entered Columbia University, but was not graduated.

Heir's Discontent
Dissatisfaction among other of the heirs of Jay Gould over George's handling of the estate, however, had been growing for some time, and in July 1910, he was removed as executor and trustee by a court order.

Mr. Gould's first marriage was in 1886 to Edith Kingston, who dropped dead while playing golf on the Gould estate at Lakewood, N. J., in November 1921. From this union there were five children.

In May, 1922, Mr. Gould married Jeanne Sinclair, a former actress, 30 years his junior. The second marriage was regarded almost as a joke, as an engagement to the actress had been made by the marriages of his children, Edith, George Jr., and Kingston. The first news of it came from Paris, where the couple were spending their honeymoon, but it later transpired that the ceremony was performed in Lakewood.

As a consequence of this second marriage, Mr. Gould lost property valued at $3,000,000 left by his first wife, which reverted to a trust fund for her children.

While Mr. Gould apparently enjoyed good health during the years he spent as a railroad builder, it developed during a lawsuit in 1923 that he had suffered a breakdown, and was spending most of his time in Europe recuperating from bronchial trouble.

DE MOLAY ELECTS

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—Thomas Wipser of Bowbells, was elected president of the chapter of Order of DeMolay, at the annual election held at the Masonic Temple.

Other officers named were: Theodore Rex, senior councillor; Frank Van Osdel, junior councillor; Sanford Lewis, scribe; and Phil Laughlin, treasurer; all of Grand Forks.

THEY'RE OPEN LATER

London, May 16.—The H. has been lifted in Westminster division. Public houses are permitted to remain open now until 11 o'clock. A ruling by the licensing justices revoked the 10 o'clock closing order in effect several years.

HOT SPRINGS RECOVERING FROM DEVASTATION OF FIRE AND FLOOD; REMARKABLE RESCUE STORIES TOLD

Only One Woman Injured Seriously When Mountain Cloud-burst Transforms Main Street Into Bed of Raging Current, and Fire Adds to Terror of the Inhabitants of Resort City

Hot Springs, Ark., May 16.—Merchants of this stricken city today opened their doors for business again after a night through which crews of men worked in tireless effort to remove the wreckage and debris left behind by the flood and fire late Monday when torrents from a mountain cloudburst dashed down the slope to form currents in its principal streets—while flames enveloped the buildings in an entire block and added another threat of death to that of drowning.

Central avenue, Hot Springs' main thoroughfare and the stream bed of the whirling flood 36 hours earlier, again was opened to traffic though the working squads were able to clear away but a small part of the flotsam which the current had strewn or piled against stationary obstacles. From this thoroughfare as a base the sanitary forces today were working out gradually in the rest of the damaged area.

Normal activities of the city had returned or were soon to be resumed. All public utilities, gas, electric lighting and street car service, which were put out of order by the elements, again were functioning.

Mrs. Kate Christenson, the only person known to have received injury in the disaster, lay in a local hospital today still in a critical condition as a result of a crushed skull she suffered when she was caught in her car by the Central avenue torrent and swept along for three blocks. Physicians despaired of her recovery. She was unconscious when her rescuers, by swimming, drew her from the flood.

Stories of remarkable rescues, as told by eye-witnesses today, swelled the wonder that many lives had not been lost in confirmation of early beliefs. Among the outstanding heroes of the disaster is Capt. John Lovett of Fire Company No. 1.

Engaged in the work of rescue while the waters and fire were at their height Lovett carried a woman from a burning building only to be engulfed in the current. Half walking, half swimming he battled his way to a hose cart, lifted his human burden to safety, then slipped back into the stream. He was swept away and thrown against a concrete post. When comrades lifted him from the water he was unconscious.

When flames burst from the windows of the Grand Rapids hotel the flood was at its height, reaching a depth of nine feet in many places.

BANDITS RAID OFFICIALS ON CHINESE TRAIN

Beat Them and Servants Who Resist, and Refuse Foreigners' Protest

Shanghai, China, May 16.—Members of the Chinese government gendarmerie boarded the train bound from Peking to Shanghai today, attacked officials, beat their Chinese servants who resisted, seized everything on the train, despite the protests of the foreigners and held possession of the train for several hours, it was learned when the train reached here this afternoon.

CAPTIVES STILL HELD

Teintsin, China, May 16.—Influential circulars calling on the people to rise up against the foreigners have been discovered in a number of nearby Chinese villages and in the native city here. The circulars alleged that a foreign committee whose names and occupations are given, is planning to turn the former German concession here over to the British.

NO PROGRESS
Washington, May 16.—Minister Schurzmann reported to the state department that no progress was made in negotiations between Chinese authorities and bandit leaders for the release of Americans and other foreigners held captive in Shantung. The minister said there were indications that the negotiations might drag on indefinitely.

The dispatch made no reference to reports that certain of the prisoners had been killed, but said Chinese reports had reached Minister Schurzmann from Davis at Tsingtau that the bandits had transported their prisoners further into the mountains to the main bandit headquarters. The consul said the action followed a conference among bandit leaders.

GO TO STRONGHOLD

Peking, China, May 16.—With the government's consent, Minister of Communications Wuyi-Lin and General Yangtich have proceeded to the stronghold of the brigands as hostages in order to obtain release of foreigners held captive.

FOUND AND LOST, NEW HUNT FOR VETERAN MADE

North Dakota war veterans are asked by the Disabled American War veterans to join in a search for Roy M. Hancock, formerly a private in the Motor Transport corps, who escaped from the insane hospital at Jamestown, March 31, 1922.

The missing youth is the son of Mrs. Hattie E. Hancock of Chattanooga, Tenn., who waited vainly after the armistice for word of her son. On April 6, 1923, she received notice from the state hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, that he was located in the Jamestown institution, according to word to the veterans, and upon communication with the North Dakota institution learned that he had escaped.

Until the recent discovery that Hancock was insane, he had been listed as a deserter. The charge of desertion has been removed and he was honorably discharged from military service as of April 1, 1923.

WRECK SAFE, FAIL TO GET MONEY THERE

Woman Awakened by Blast

Of The City

Safe Door Jammed by Explosion, and Robbers Can't Reach Safe

Mandan, N. D., May 16.—Robbers failed early this morning to secure anything other than a small amount in change, when they wrecked the safe of the Selfridge State Bank at Selfridge, according to information received here by Joseph P. Healy, president of the First National bank and its subsidiary banks in the Sioux district.

No clues were left by the robbers, nor was there anything to determine the number in the raiding party. A woman, awakened by the blast, saw a car driven rapidly toward the south.

Healy, president of the First National bank and its subsidiary banks in the Sioux district.

No clues were left by the robbers, nor was there anything to determine the number in the raiding party. A woman, awakened by the blast, saw a car driven rapidly toward the south.

The safe door was jammed in such a manner by the explosion that the yeggs could not get into the strong box.

It was necessary for the assistant cashier of the bank to drive 20 miles or more to Shields in order to telephone the news of the attempted robbery, Selfridge being without telephone connections.

Selfridge is in Sioux county on the Milwaukee railroad not a great distance from the South Dakota line.

HARDEE HAS BEFORE HIM LASH REPEAL

Senate Orders Removal of Judge Who Sentenced
Martin Tabert

Tallahassee, Fla., May 16.—The senate passed today, 24 to 0, a house bill to "abolish" the state convict lease system. The bill was merely to clarify the statutes as the practice was really abolished in 1919. The measure now goes to the Governor.

Tallahassee, Fla., May 16.—Governor Hardee today had before him a bill which proposes to abolish the whip and the whipping post in state convict camps. The Governor's nature is all that is required to nullify the measure. The senate yesterday in the investigation of Martin Tabert of North Dakota and who has been charged with drunkenness and irregularity in office is the second county official to go the hands of the Governor. The bill was J. R. Jones, county sheriff.

Mr. Waite wrote to the President urging that if Governor Smith should sign the bill Congress should be convened and that the Governor's members of the legislature who vote for the bill should be suspended.

"Every state official who voted this bill is subject to the law, treason, having taken the oath to sustain the Constitution of the United States," Mr. Waite's letter said. In answering Mr. Waite, the President says:

"Pending the approval of the bill by Governor Smith this matter largely to be regarded as having reached the stage where any federal authority is called upon for a determination of national policy. Much of what you say I am fully accorded."

The legislation had deliberately a many years of occasion adopted present policy which is written into the 18th amendment. It is the law of the land.

So long as it remains the national policy there can remain for one course for the national government to pursue. This is to use every means to make the law of the land effective."

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 16.—Organization of Progressive party movement in South Dakota for Henry Ford for president similar to such an organization formed or in process of formation in other states now is being held up, pending referendum proceedings on the primary law.

Steps looking toward a South Dakota organization will be taken in this state next month, according to word from Roy Harrop, president of the American Economic Society which is promoting the Ford candidacy.

Kensington has a larger proportion of women to men than any other London district, with 1,604 women to every 1,000 men.

BIG REWARD IS OFFERED

Chicago, May 16.—A reward of $10,000 was offered today by the trustees of Northwestern university at the request of Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of the institution, for definite information that would clear up the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Lightfoot Mount, a freshman, who disappeared in September, 1921, after a class rush.

Heir's Discontent
Dissatisfaction among other of the heirs of Jay Gould over George's handling of the estate, however, had been growing for some time, and in July, 1919, he was removed as executor and trustee by a court order.

Mr. Gould's first marriage was in 1886 to Edith Kingston, who dropped dead while leaving golf on the Gould estate at Lakewood, N. J., in November 1921. From this union there were five children.

In May, 1922, Mr. Gould married Jeanne Sinclair, a former actress, 30 years his junior. The second marriage was regarded as almost as much of an elopement as the marriages of his children, Edith, George Jr., and Kingston. The first news of it came from Paris, where the couple were spending their honeymoon, but it later transpired that the ceremony was performed in Lakewood.

As a consequence of this second marriage, Mr. Gould lost property valued at $3,000,000 left by his first wife, which reverted to a trust fund for her children.

While Mr. Gould apparently enjoyed good health during the years he spent as a railroad builder, it developed during a lawsuit in 1923 that he had suffered a breakdown, and was spending most of his time in Europe recuperating from bronchial trouble.

WRECK SAFE, FAIL TO GET MONEY THERE

Woman Awakened by Blast Sees Robbers Driving Out Of The City

Mandan, N. D., May 16.—Robbers failed early this morning to secure anything other than a small amount in change, when they wrecked the safe of the Selfridge State bank of Selfridge, according to information received here by Joseph P. Hess, president of the First National bank and its subsidiary banks in the Sioux district.

No clues were left by the robbers, nor was there anything to determine the number in the raiding party.

A woman, awakened by the blast, saw a car driven rapidly toward the south.

The safe door was jammed in such a manner by the explosion that the yeggs could not get into the strong box.

It was necessary for the assistant cashier of the bank to drive 20 miles or more to Shields in order to telephone the news of the attempted robbery, Selfridge being without telephone connections.

Selfridge is in Sioux county on the Milwaukee railroad not a great distance from the South Dakota line.

HARDEE HAS BEFORE HIM LASH REPEAL

Senate Orders Removal of Judge Who Sentenced Martin Tabert

Tallahassee, Fla., May 16.—The senate passed today, 24 to 0, a house bill to "abolish" the state convict lease system. The bill was merely to clarify the statutes as the practice was really abolished in 1919. The measure now goes to the Governor.

Tallahassee, Fla., May 16.—Governor Hardee today had before him the bill which proposes to abolish the whip and the whipping boss in state convict camps. The Governor's signature is all that is required to make the measure a law. The bill was introduced in the senate yesterday when that body refused to reconsider its previous action, 15 to 13.

The senate in executive session yesterday ordered Judge J. B. Willis, judge of Leon county, removed from office. Judge Willis, whose name was brought out in the investigation of Martin Tabert of North Dakota, and who has been charged with drunkenness and irregularity in office, is the second county official to go to the hands of the Governor. The first was J. R. Jones, county sheriff.

Mr. Waite wrote to the President urging that if Governor Smith should sign the bill Congress should be convened and that the Governor and members of the legislature who voted for the bill should be suspended.

"Every state official who voted for this bill is subject to the law of treason, having taken the oath to sustain the Constitution of the United States," Mr. Waite's letter said. In answering Mr. Waite, the President said:

"Pending the approval of the bill by Governor Smith this matter is largely to be retarded as having reached the stage where any federal authority is called upon for a determination of national policy. With much of what you say I am fully in accord."

"The nation had deliberately after many years of occasion adopted the present policy which is written into the 18th amendment. It is the law of the land."

So long as it remains the national policy there can remain but one course for the national government to pursue. This is to use every means to make the law of the land effective."

RELEASED, IS HELD AGAIN

Art O'Brien Charged With Seditious Conspiracy

London, May 16.—The court of appeals today ordered the release of Art O'Brien who was deported to Ireland after being arrested in the March round-up of Republican supervisors. O'Brien was brought before the court on a writ of habeas corpus. On his discharge, he was immediately taken into custody by officers from Scotland Yard and was removed to Bowe street. In the Bowe street police court where O'Brien was charged with seditious conspiracy the case was adjourned for a week. The court refused bail.

NO PROGRESS
Washington, May 16.—Minister Schumann reported to the state department that no progress was being made in negotiations between Chinese authorities and bandit leaders for the release of Americans and other foreigners held captive in Shanghai. The minister said there were indications that the negotiations might drag on indefinitely.

The dispatch made no reference to reports that certain of the prisoners had been killed, but did contain reports that reached Minister Schumann from Davis at Tsingtau that the bandits had transported their prisoners further into the mountains to the main bandit headquarters. The consul said the action followed a conference among bandit leaders.

FOUND AND LOST, NEW HUNT FOR VETERAN MADE

North Dakota war veterans are asked by the Disabled American Veterans to join in a search for Roy M. Hancock, formerly a private in the Motor Transport corps, who escaped from the insane hospital at Jamestown, March 31, 1923.

The missing youth is the son of Mrs. Hattie E. Hancock of Chattanooga, Tenn., who waited vainly after the armistice for word of her son. On April 6, 1922, she received notice from the state hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, that he was located in the Jamestown institution, according to word to the veterans, and upon communication with the North Dakota institution learned that he had escaped.

Until the recent discovery that Hancock was insane, he had been listed as a deserter. The charge of desertion has been removed and he was honorably discharged from the military service as of April 1, 1923.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 16.—Organization of a Progressive party movement in South Dakota for Henry Ford for president similar to such an organization formed or in process of formation in other states now is being held up, pending referendum proceedings on the primary law.

Steps looking toward a South Dakota organization will be taken in this state next month, according to word from Roy Harrop, president of the American Economic Society which is promoting the Ford candidacy.

BIG REWARD IS OFFERED

Chicago, May 16.—A reward of $10,000 was offered today by the trustees of Northwestern university at the request of Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of the institution, for definite information that would clear up the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Leighton Mount, a freshman, who disappeared in September, 1921, after a class rush.

STARVED AND ROBBED CREW RELATE TALE

Wierd Story of Rum Running, Double-Crossing, Battles With Seas, Related

START WITH 8,000 CASES

New York, May 15.—A starved and robbed crew, victimized at every point of the compass as they told it, drifted with the tide into quarantine yesterday. After being taken ashore to eat their first square meal in a week or so they told federal officials a story which the latter regarded as the most important information received since it was decided to put an end to rum row.

The skipper unfolded a tale of deception, thievery, smuggling, piracy, starvation and helplessness, and before he had dipped his digits into a finger bowl federal investigators were hunting for headquarters of a gigantic bootlegging syndicate he described as being in New York. He said it was the controlling factor in rum row.

Many Details Withheld
The full nature of the confidences was not revealed, but assistant United States Attorney Clark, who questioned Captain C. Bidlon and three of his crew said the vessel, the British yacht Yankton, would be hauled under the mercantile law and sold, to pay the crew who have been away from Havana, their home port, since early in January.

Mr. Clark intimated he would seek A. E. Corns, listed on the Yankton's manifest as from Miami, Florida, who left the ship a month ago with a party of rum runners who carried away 3,500 cases of grain alcohol. Corns and Captain Bidlon he was going ashore to get food and fuel and arrange for payment of the crew. Whether Corns disappeared purposely or was spirited away Captain Bidlon would like to know.

Started With 8,000 Cases
Captain Bidlon of Havana, B. I., recruited his crew at Havana shortly after New Year's for a quick trip to St. Pierre, Miquelon, with 8,000 cases of grain alcohol and a few bales of Cuban tobacco. The crew were informed, when the high seas were reached, they could not correspond with any one ashore and could not leave the vessel until anchor was dropped in Havana again. That was the first "double cross," he said.

About February 19 the Yankton sighted Ambrose lightship when a man, described as a representative of New York bootlegging interests, whose entry into the vessel was left obscure, ordered Captain Bidlon to proceed to Providence, R. I. That port was not touched, however, Captain Bidlon said, but in the vicinity of Block Island, two motor launches appeared alongside and lighted away two thousand cases of alcohol and two thousand pounds of tobacco.

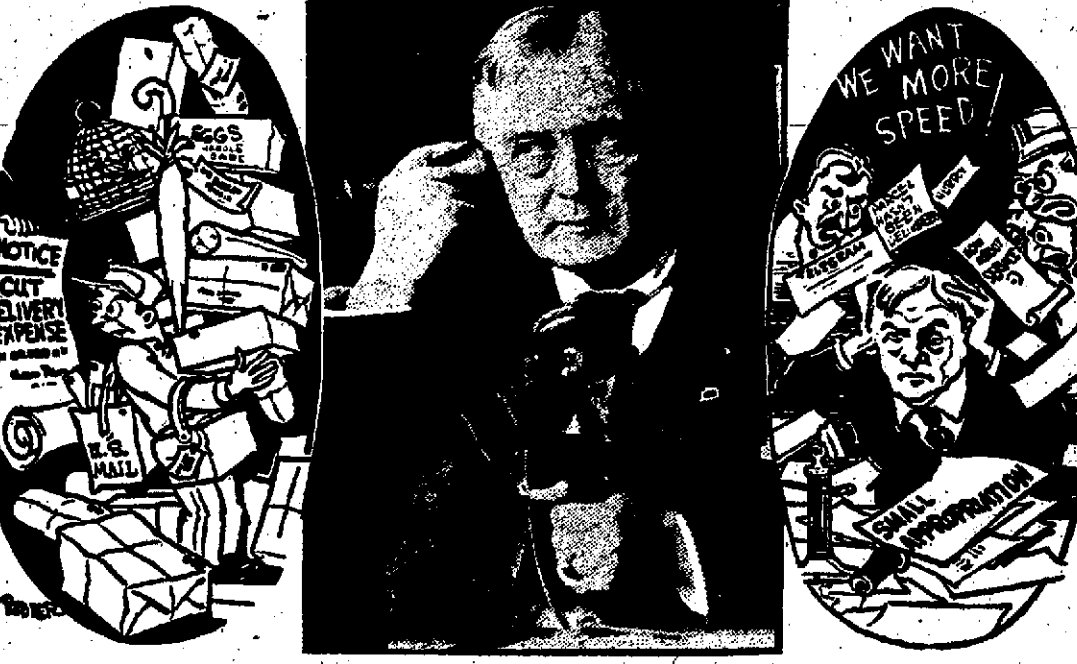

Another Double Cross
Captain Bidlon learned afterwards he was represented as saying, that the consignee ashore reported never receiving the transshipment, so the navigator marked another "double X" in his log.

For five weeks the Yankton remained hove-to, then went to Montauk Point under instructions and unloaded 3,500 cases of alcohol to the Cavalier, a British schooner. That was where Corns disappeared and where the next "double X" was entered in the log.

Still being shy of sea biscuit and steam coal, the crew broke up most of the wooden furnishings of the ship and headed for Rum Row. On their arrival, said the captain, two tugs came alongside and forty armed men swinging guns, briskly boarded the Yankton and took the remainder of its cargo. Captain Bidlon said one of the boarding party made some unintelligible reference to taking under orders of a New York bootlegging syndicate. He put down another "double X".

With the bunkers holding nothing but coal dust and the galley scraped of potato peeling and other debris to hold armor for New York bay, and a square meal.

"TOO MUCH BUSINESS" IRKS NEW, U. S. POSTAL HEAD

HARRY S. NEW

By Harry H. Hunt
NEA Service Writer
Washington, May 15.—Too much business!

That's what's troubling Harry S. New, postmaster general at the end of his first month as head of Uncle Sam's postal service.

New, it is unofficially reported here, is considering violating the law in order to maintain deliveries and to prevent a demoralizing breakdown in postal service.

The "violation" will consist in shifting certain appropriations for maintenance of the service which are rigidly fixed by law—by law which New, as a senator, supported.

New is reported to have conferred with President Harding with regard to taking this action.

With the volume of mail matter increasing at an unprecedented rate, New and his assistants are lying awake nights trying to devise ways to make the department live within the Congressional appropriation limits.

Early in March a blanket order was sent to city postmasters to cut delivery expenses to the limit. The extent of these cuts was left to the discretion of postmasters.

As a result, many postmasters cut more deeply than discreetly. A large percentage of them sought to ing the meeting, committed themselves to a stringent enforcement of the laws.

Today the board made a call on former deputy wardens to return to the board such badges of authority as they may have in their possession. A large number of these are scattered over the state, and the board is anxious to have all of them returned.

A general reorganization of the game warden staff is planned.

The board will seek the co-operation of sportsmen in their program for law enforcement.

FISHING IN STATE LAKES OPENS MAY 16

Jamestown, N. D., May 15.—This is the week that North Dakota Isaac Waltons are wearing the smile that goes with contentment, for bait is plentiful and the season opens for pike and perch on May 16. Local tackle merchants report a growing business as the opening of the season draws near.

A. B. Sorenson, manager of the Spiritwood Lake pavilion near Jamestown and other guardians of the lakes and streams of the state report fish plentiful although the early season has not shown favorable indications of a warm-up that is necessary for the best angling. For three weeks Mr. Sorenson has been getting his boats and tackle in readiness for the nineros who come yearly at the opening of the season whether the weather is favorable or not.

This year at Spiritwood the season will open with trimmings for the management had broadcasted an announcement of an "Anglers' Dance" at the pavilion May 16.

Likewise, other proprietors of the lake and stream resorts in the state have made extensive preparations for the entertainment and comfort of the Waltons of both sexes.

Plump Cheeks and Bright Smiles
Mark Russian Children Saved by A. R. A. From Perils of Famine

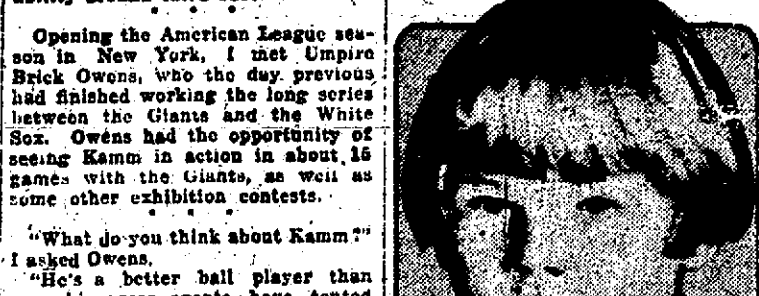

An infant industry whose gross returns for the first seventeen months of its existence were in the neighborhood of $14,500,000 is being liquidated. On March 15 the American Relief Administration of which Herbert Hoover is chairman discontinued its sales of food and clothing remittances to Russia. The sale of food remittances began late in the fall of 1921 and the sale of clothing packages started in November of last year. More than a million $10 food packages were sold and close to forty thousand $20 clothing packages.

The delivery of the packages continues even though the sale of the remittances has ended, for, although some deliveries are completed sooner, three months from the time of purchase is the usual allowance made for the receipt of the package by the designated consignee in Russia.

The operation was conducted by the American Relief Administration in connection with its elaborate and extensive feeding program by which it is estimated that no less than

Kamm impressed me most, no doubt because of his marvelous hitting ability around third base.

Opening the American League season in New York, I met Umpire Brick Owens, who the day previous had finished working the long series between the Giants and the White Sox. Owens had the opportunity of seeing Kamm in action in about 15 games with the Giants, as well as some other exhibition contests.

"What do you think about Kamm?" I asked Owens.

"He's a better ball player than even his press agents have touted him, particularly when it comes to fielding," replied Owens.

"Kamm can do anything Jimmy Collins or Bill Bradley did, and then has a few tricks of his own."

"Well, I am not as positive about his hitting as his fielding, but I feel pretty sure he will hit more than a lot of third sackers who are holding down regular jobs in the big show."

The way Owens sized up Kamm convinced me that Kamm was worth every cent the White Sox paid for him. However, a few evenings later any doubt that may have still existed as to Kamm's ability to hit was dispelled. Bumped into Jack Bentley and Frank Snyder, star catcher of the New York Giants, on Broadway, the Giants being scheduled in Brooklyn.

In the two world series between the Giants and the Yankees, Snyder did practically all the catching for McGraw's club and his work would have been hard to improve upon. His handling of pitchers was perfect, rarely did he err in his selection of pitches for the Yankee sluggers.

It didn't take long for the conversation to switch to Kamm, and the first question I asked Snyder was if he could hit.

"Unless Kamm hit away above his head in the series with the Giants, he won't have any trouble holding up his end in the American League," replied Snyder.

"I had been told he was just an ordinary hitter, but he began to slam our pitchers from the start. Then I began to work on him. I think I had our pitchers work harder on Kamm than any other member of the Sox, yet his work at the bat featured the series."

"On what Kamm showed me in 15 games I rate him a mighty good hitter. He's a big leaguer right now. Chicago won't have to worry about a third sacker for years to come."

Here's a popular way to serve Kellogg's Bran—greatest health food!

Most every one who realizes how effective Kellogg's Bran is for the permanent relief of constipation has their own particular way of serving this wonderful cereal. Most families eat it as a cereal with milk or cream, others as their favorite hot or cold cereal. Every one enjoys its nut-like flavor!

If you are cooking a hot cereal try this method:—Measure off two table-spoonsfuls for each member of the family. Mix it with the cereal and cook as you always cook the cereal.

Kellogg's Bran is scientifically prepared and ready to eat, but its regular powers are in no way impaired if you cook it with other cereals.

Kellogg's Bran has won the friendly recommendation of physicians because it does give prompt and permanent relief from mild or chronic constipation and because it can be eaten without forming a habit. Again, Kellogg's Bran will free you from drastic, dangerous cathartics.

When constipation conditions exist in your system or when you are threatened, do not take half-way measures. Foods with a partial bran content cannot free you! What you must have is Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN! Go the limit; get relief!

Every member of your family will delight in eating Bran raisin bread, muffins, pancakes, macaroons, etc. Recipes on every package.

Start eating Bran to-day! Get well—keep well—keep disease out of your home! First-class hotels, clubs and restaurants serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers.

MASS MEETING BY SUGAR MEN BEING PLANNED

New York, May 15.—Plans for a mass meeting to protest against continued attacks on the sugar trade by government officials were understood to have been discussed at a secret meeting held this morning on the floor of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange. It was reported that the meeting would be held tomorrow in the Wall Street district.

Barring of newspaper men and even messenger boys from the floor caused a flurry of excitement in the trade. At the offices of the superintendent of the Exchange it was said no announcement would be made as to the nature of the secret session.

Code of Ethics

For the purpose of standardizing and giving uniformity to accepted ethical business methods, this declaration is published. It is what we conceive to be our duty toward all men with whom we deal.

"We admit that the corner-stone of Commerce is integrity; that the assets of any commercial institution consist of honesty and business character first—and after that, service and merchandise.

"We hold paramount the truth that advertising is a covenant with the public; that the spoken or printed word is as binding on performance as an oath in a judicial tribunal, as sacred as the personal pledge.

"It is our constant aim to so administer the affairs of this institution that individual service to the customer is not diminished or minimized by reason of volume of trade; that interested, personal service, based on the needs and requirements of the individual, is our first duty and chiefest task.

"Mutual exchange of confidence between buyer and seller is essential. We affirm that the history of any article of merchandise concealed beneath trade expressions or symbols (the meaning of which leads the buyer to form an opinion more favorable than would obtain without such disguise) is unfair to the buyer, and therefore contrary to our ethics."

This is the basis on which we conduct our business.

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL.—High upon the balcony she stood, a grim spectre outlined by the searchlight against the flaming, smoking walls! Down in the teeming street, a riot of panic and disorder, stood the father, struck to the heart by terror as he saw the smoke engulf his daughter and blot her completely from view. Then the thrilling rescue!

That, briefly, is but one of the terrible action situations in the great dramatic melodrama "The Third Alarm," which opens an engagement tonight at the Capitol theater where it will be officially dedicated to Chief Duquet of the local fire department and the brave and loyal men of his command.

"The Third Alarm" is a companion picture to "In the Name of the Law," a police drama of unusual proportions which is still entertaining millions of theatergoers throughout the world. It is built on the same huge lines but with far more thrilling action than was developed in the production which immortalized the American policeman.

THE ELTINGE.—Monte Blue and Marie Prevost made a fine starring combination in "Brass," which was shown at the Eltinge theatre yesterday and which will be shown again today and tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday. "Brass" is the screen adaptation of Chas. G. Norris' novel, one of the "best sellers." The cast of actors seem as if the story had been written to fit the players rather than that the players had been selected to fill the parts.

Phillip and Margorie Baldwin are young, married and miserable. Margorie longs for the gaiety of dances and cabarets and Phillip is jealous. Their child makes no difference, and the divorce follows logically. Margorie marrying the man she had been flirting with, Phillip drifting helplessly along while two women of different types fall in love with him.

Irene Rich and Harry Meyers also have prominent parts and give very fine performances. One of the novel Earl Hurd comedies, a combination of character and cartoon pictures is also on the program.

WEATHER FORECASTS.—Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday; warmer tonight.

General Weather Conditions.—The severe storm has moved northeastward to the lower Great Lakes region and light to very heavy precipitation occurred from the Mississippi Valley eastward. Light, scattered precipitation also fell over the Rocky Mountain region. Moderate temperatures prevail in all sections.

North Dakota Corn and Wheat Region Summary.—For the week ending May 15, 1923. Under favorable weather conditions all outdoor work made rapid progress. Spring wheat seeding is practically finished and a large percentage of the crop is up to excellent stand and color. Oats and barley seeding is well advanced and some flax has been sown. Plowing for corn made good headway, and indications are for a large acreage of both corn and flax. Frosts and freezing temperatures were frequent but slight damage resulted. The main highways of the State are in excellent condition in all sections, across roads being improved rapidly.

MUSIC CLUB WINS LAURELS WITH CONCERT

Annual Program of the Thursday Music Club Is Received with Applause

MANY FINE NUMBERS

From the time the ladies' chorus of the Thursday Musical club opened at their third annual concert last evening at the Presbyterian church with Pissuti's hitting and sparkling "Welcome Pretty Primrose" until the chorus closed with Demarest's "America Triumphant" as a grand finale, the interest of the large audience was held.

The program which was filled with a variety of delightful numbers came to a close all too soon. It was with reluctance that the crowd ceased their applause and rose to depart.

Outstanding numbers on the program consisted of the two piano and eight hand selections, and the vocal quintette. Mrs. Arthur Bauer and Mrs. De Ligouri introduced the former with "La Baladine Caprice" which allowed the players to show their skill to advantage in the presentation of a piece which was filled with striking notes which rippled up and down the two pianos. This was followed with Schubert's "Marche Militaire," a piece that was made particularly attractive by the interpretation given it by the pianists.

8-Hand Piano Number.—The eight-hand piano number which appeared on the latter part of the program as presented by Mmes. Genevieve M. Hughes, R. E. Morris, Richard Tracy, and G. E. Wingreen surprised and pleased the audience, for it is rather unusual to have double piano numbers. The "Grand Valse de Concert" allowed the players opportunities in interpreting a piece which required skill in playing intricate little turns and thrills in addition to bringing out volume in working up to climaxes.

In singing "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod" the vocalists sang with wonderful harmonious beauty. Mrs. Wilbur Targart's voice appeared well adapted to carrying the soprano obligato part while Mmes. Bauer, Schaffer, Scothorn, and Morris' voices combined to produce a powerful quartet.

While certain numbers were particularly attractive because the type of music is not so common in Bismarck, yet the solo and duet selections were repeated, especially those from the audience. George Humphreys as the first vocal soloist on the program was warmly received in his rendition of McGill's "Duna" and Homer's "Banjo Song," the latter being a rhythmic selection particularly well adapted to the singer's voice.

Violin Selections Good.—Donald MacDonald was showered with applause at the conclusion of his violin selections. The first one, "Caprice Viennois" by Kreisler was a sprightly number filled with elaborate runs that gave Mr. MacDonald a chance to show his skill in bringing forth brilliant sparkling runs from his instrument. His second number by Wieniawski, the second contrast to the first, was filled with wild and mournful notes of the minor keys. The violinist displayed his skill as a musician in making the transformation to entirely different types of music with ease and adroitness.

Mrs. Borne and Mrs. Scothorn gave a charming interpretation of Schubert's "Serenade," a song that gave them ample opportunity in displaying their voice qualities. Mrs. John Larson was warmly received by her hearers in two songs, "The Spirit Flower" and "May Morning," the latter a catchy little song particularly pleasing. Much of her popularity was due to the clear enunciation which she displayed in singing.

Henry Halverson refused to respond to encores after singing "My Mother" and "Just a Song at Twilight," despite the insistence of the audience. Both songs were artistically rendered.

To Madam Schaffer who directed the chorus' work goes much of the credit for the wonderful harmonious effect produced by the ensemble numbers given by the club members. The concluding number, "America Triumphant" was one of the brilliant selections of the program.

CREDITORS MUST AGREE ON NAME OF RECEIVER

Mandan, N. D., May 16.—Benton Baker, referee in bankruptcy, at a hearing here, decided that neither the group represented by William Langer nor the group represented by claims of S. A. Young and others were in the majority in claims against the defunct Morton County Farmers Press and would allow neither factions to submit the names of various persons upon one of whom the creditors of the paper might be able to agree.

A note owing to the Farmers State bank by a group of the Langer faction was taken up and also the amount claimed against the plant of the paper by the group.

Meanwhile Seaman Smith is acting as temporary receiver his chief duty being to hold the keys with which the doors of the plant were locked debaring S. A. Young from using the printing machinery for job work purposes.

CHURCH ASSOCIATION MEETS.—Hankinson, N. D., May 16.—Rev. E. A. Allen of Hankinson, was named moderator at the 32nd annual convention here at the Wahpeton Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers. Other officers are: Mark Crawford of Dwight, assistant moderator; F. H. Bergman of Wahpeton, registrar and treasurer; and

Robert T. Barber of Wahpeton, auditor.

Rev. Allen was elected the association's delegate to the national council meeting of Congregational churches to be held this fall at Springfield, Mass.; and Mrs. L. A. Lee of Hankinson was named alternate.

The association adopted the proposed new constitution which conforms with that of other associations of the state.

BALANCE IS AGAINST U. S.

Foreign Trade Turns Sharply Against Her

Washington, May 16.—The balance of trade turned sharply against the United States in March, and continued so during April, according to estimates made by the commerce department which valued March imports at $402,000,000 and exports during the month at $341,162,000.

In a supplementary statement the department indicated that customs collected from April imports had been equally heavy and added that during the first four months of the calendar year the United States had taken approximately $60,000,000 more in goods and conditions from abroad than it had sold.

The situation, while not entirely unprecedented in the country's trade history, and while forecast in official and economic discussions during recent months, seldom has been encountered, since the United States, except during rare intervals, has always sold more commodities abroad than it has purchased in foreign countries.

No mention was made of the tariff controversy in the official study, though President Harding some months ago was said to be expecting a turn in the trade balance against the United States and to consider that the tariff had in no way prevented the purchase abroad by Americans of vast quantities of merchandise.

Funeral Friday.—Funeral services will be Friday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. at the Presbyterian church. Adjutant Stamp of the Salvation Army, formerly of Bismarck, will come here from Rochester, Minn., to officiate at the services.

Jonas Olin, Almont Farmer, Dies

Jonas Olin, 45, resident of Almont for the past thirty years, died at a local hospital last night at 10 o'clock after a two weeks illness.

Mr. Olin was a well known farmer of that vicinity. He was born in Sweden and is the son of Carl Olin of Sims. He leaves to mourn his death a wife and three children, two brothers, Alfred and August Olin of Almont, two sisters, Mrs. E. Fosberg of Chisholm and Miss Olin of Bismarck, two sisters in Sweden, and a cousin, Mrs. Fred Swenson.

The remains will be taken to Sims this afternoon for burial Friday in the family lot.

SHEEP SHEARING BEGUN.—Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—Sheep shearing in Grand Forks county is scheduled to begin next week. Arrangements for shearers for the farmers of the county are now being made by D. B. Morris, county agent.

Code of Ethics

For the purpose of standardizing and giving uniformity to accepted ethical business methods, this declaration is published. It is what we conceive to be our duty toward all men with whom we deal.

"We admit that the corner-stone of Commerce is integrity; that the assets of any commercial institution consist of honesty and business character first—and after that, service and merchandise.

"We hold paramount the truth that advertising is a covenant with the public; that the spoken or printed word is as binding on performance as an oath in a judicial tribunal, as sacred as the personal pledge.

"It is our constant aim to so administer the affairs of this institution that individual service to the customer is not diminished or minimized by reason of volume of trade; that interested, personal service, based on the needs and requirements of the individual, is our first duty and chiefest task.

"Mutual exchange of confidence between buyer and seller is essential. We affirm that the history of any article of merchandise concealed beneath trade expressions or symbols (the meaning of which leads the buyer to form an opinion more favorable than would obtain without such disguise) is unfair to the buyer, and therefore contrary to our ethics."

This is the basis on which we conduct our business.

MUSIC CLUB WINS LAURELS WITH CONCERT

Annual Program of the Thursday Music Club Is Received with Applause

MANY FINE NUMBERS

From the time the ladies' chorus of the Thursday Musical club opened at their third annual concert last evening at the Presbyterian church with Piusetti's lulling and sparkling "Welcome Pretty Primrose" until the chorus closed with Demarest's "America Triumphant" as a grand finale, the interest of the large audience was held.

The program which was filled with a variety of delightful numbers came to a close all too soon. It was with reluctance that the crowd ceased their applause and rose to depart.

Outstanding numbers on the program consisted of the two piano and eight hand selections, and the vocal quintette. Mrs. Arthur Bauer and Mrs. De Liguori introduced the former with "A Baladine, Caprice" which allowed the players to show their skill to advantage in the presentation of a piece which was filled with tinkling notes which rippled up and down the two pianos. This was followed with Schubert's "Marche Militaire," a piece that was made particularly attractive by the interpretation given it by the pianists.

8-Hand Piano Number
The eight-hand piano number which appeared on the latter part of the program as presented by Mmes. Genevieve M. Hughes, R. E. Morris, Richard Tracy, and G. Z. Wingreene surprised and pleased the audience, for it is rather unusual to have double piano numbers. The "Grand Valse de Concert" allowed the players opportunities in interpreting a piece which required skill in playing intricate little turns and thrills in addition to bringing out volume in working up to climaxes.

In singing "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod" the vocalists sang with wonderful harmonious beauty. Mrs. Wilbur Targart's voice appeared well adapted to carrying the soprano obligato part while Mmes. Bauer, Scheffer, Seethorn, and Morris's voices combined to produce a powerful quartet.

While certain numbers were particularly attractive because the type of music is not so common in Bismarck, yet the solo and duet selections won repeated applause from the audience. George Humphreys as the first vocal soloist on the program was warmly received in his rendition of McGill's "Duna" and Homer's "Banjo Song," the latter being a rhythmic selection particularly well adapted to the singer's voice.

Violin Selections Good
Donald Mac Donald was showered with applause at the conclusion of his violin selections. The first one, "Caprice Viennois" by Kreisler was a sprightly number filled with elaborate runs that gave Mr. MacDonald a chance to show his skill in bringing forth brilliant sparkling tones from his instrument. His second number by Wieniawski, in direct contrast to the first, was filled with a quiet and beautiful tone of the minor keys. The violinist displayed his skill as a musician in making the transformation to entirely different types of music with ease and adroitness.

Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Seethorn gave a charming interpretation of Schubert's "Serenade," a song that gave them ample opportunity in displaying their voice qualities. Mrs. John Larson was warmly received by her hearers in two songs, "The Spirit Flower" and "May Morning," the latter a catchy little song particularly pleasing. Much of her popularity was due to the clear enunciation which she displayed in singing.

Henry Halverson refused to respond to encores after singing "My Mother" and "Just a Song at Twilight," despite the insistence of the audience. Both songs were artistically rendered. To Madam Scheffer who directed the chorus work goes much of the credit for the wonderful harmonious effect produced by the ensemble numbers given by the club members. The concluding number, "America Triumphant" was one of the brilliant selections of the program.

CREDITORS MUST AGREE ON NAME OF RECEIVER

Mandan, N. D., May 16.—Benton Baker, referee in bankruptcy, at a hearing here, decided that neither the group represented by William Langer nor the group represented by claims of S. A. Young and others were in the majority in claims against the defunct Morton County Farmers Press and would allow neither factions to submit the names of various persons upon one of whom the creditors of the paper might be able to agree.

A note owing to the Farmers State bank by a group of the Langer faction was taken up and also the amount claimed against the plant of the paper by the group.

Meanwhile Seaman Smith is acting as temporary receiver his chief duty being to hold the keys with which the doors of the plant were locked debaring S. A. Young from using the printing machinery for job work purposes.

CHURCH ASSOCIATION MEETS
Hankinson, N. D., May 16.—Rev. E. A. Allin of Wahpeton, was named moderator at the 33rd annual convention here at the Wahpeton Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers. Other officers are: Mark Crawford of Dwight, assistant moderator; F. H. Bergman of Wahpeton, registrar and treasurer; and

Robert T. Barber of Wahpeton, auditor.

Rev. Allin was elected the association's delegate to the national council meeting of Congregational churches to be held this fall at Springfield, Mass.; and Mrs. E. A. Lee of Hankinson was named alternate.

The association adopted the proposed new constitution which conforms with that of other associations of the state.

BALANCE IS AGAINST U. S.

Foreign Trade Turns Sharply
Against Her

Washington, May 16.—The balance of trade turned sharply against the United States in March, and continued so during April, according to estimates made by the commerce department which valued March imports at $402,000,000 and exports during the month at $341,162,000.

In a supplementary statement the department indicated that customs collected from April imports had been equally heavy and added that during the first four months of the calendar year the United States had taken approximately $50,000,000 more in goods and conditions from abroad than it had sold.

The situation, while not entirely unprecedented in the country's trade history, and while forecast in official and economic discussions during recent months, seldom has been encountered, since the United States, except during rare intervals, has always sold more commodities abroad than it has purchased in foreign countries.

No mention was made of the tariff controversy in the official study, though President Harding some months ago was said to be expecting a turn in the trade balance against the United States and to consider that the tariff had in no way prevented the purchase abroad by Americans of vast quantities of merchandise.

High upon the balcony she stood, a grim spectre outlined by the searchlight against the flaming, smoking walls! Down in the teeming street, a riot of panic and disorder, stood the father, struck to the heart by terror as he saw the smoke engulf his daughter and blot her completely from view. Then the thrilling rescue!

That, briefly, is but one of the terrific action situations in the great fireman's melodrama "The Third Alarm," which opens an engagement tonight at the Capitol theater where it will be officially dedicated to Chief J. J. Langer of the local fire department and the brave and loyal men of his command.

"The Third Alarm" is a companion picture to "In the Name of the Law," a police drama of unusual proportions which is still entertaining millions of theatergoers throughout the world. It is built on the same huge lines but with far more thrilling action than was developed in the production which immortalized the American policeman.

THE ELTINGE

Monte Blue and Marie Prevost made a fine starring combination in "Brass" which was shown at the Eltinge theatre yesterday and which will be shown again today and tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday. "Brass" is the screen adaptation of Chas. G. Norris' novel, one of the "best sellers." The cast of actors fit their parts so well that it would seem as if the story had been written to fit the players rather than that the players had been selected to fill the parts.

Phillip and Marjorie Baldwin are young, married and miserable. Marjorie longs for the gaiety of dances and cabarets and Phillip is jealous. Their child makes no difference, and the divorce follows logically. Marjorie marrying the man she had been flirting with, Phillip drifting helplessly along while two women of different types fall in love with him.

Irene Rich and Harry Meyers also have prominent parts and give very fine performances. One of the novel Earl Hurd comedies, a combination of character and cartoon pictures is also on the program.

WEATHER FORECASTS

For Bismarck and vicinity: Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday; warmer tonight.

For North Dakota: Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday; warmer tonight.

General Weather Conditions

The severe storm has moved northeastward to the lower Great Lakes region and light to very heavy precipitation occurred from the Mississippi Valley eastward. Light, scattered precipitation also fell over the Rocky Mountain region. Moderate temperatures prevail in all sections.

North Dakota Corn and Wheat Report Summary

For the week ending May 15, 1923. Under favorable weather conditions all outdoor work made rapid progress. Spring wheat seeding is practically finished and a large percentage of the crop is up to excellent stand and color. Oats and barley seeding is well advanced and some flax has been sown. Plowing for corn made good headway, and indications are for a large acreage of both corn and flax. Frosts and freezing temperatures were frequent but slight damage resulted. The main highways of the State are in excellent condition in all sections, across roads being improved rapidly.

HOW BANKER-FARMER EXCHANGE PLAN AIDS BETTER AGRICULTURE

Buyers and Sellers Brought Together by Field Experts Who Secure Square Deal for Both Parties; Quality of Farm Products Improved.

By D. H. OTIS,

Agricultural Director, American Bankers Association.

THE RAISING of first class cattle and the planting of pure bred seeds are but little more time than inferior cattle and inferior seeds. With improved livestock and dependable seed the earnings of the farmer are sure to increase in volume and value. That thought was the forerunner of the Banker-Farmer Exchange idea, a plan by which the banker might aid the farmer toward the possession of better cattle and the production of better crops and find a ready market for his surplus.

The Banker-Farmer Exchange plan was proposed in 1919 by the Agricultural Committee of the Wisconsin Bankers Association, of which the chairman was Burton M. Smith, now chairman of the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association. To get it started, bankers of Wisconsin subscribed to a guarantee fund of $10,000, covering a period of two years.

After three years of operation, during which time there has been opportunity to give the plan a thorough test, the Exchange has been found to be an actual and a distinct help to farmers, and, incidentally, to the banks of farming communities.

How the Exchange Works
The idea is worked out as follows:
Any farmer in the state who has any grade or pure bred livestock for sale can stop into the bank where he does his banking business, and, on blanks furnished to the bank, can list what he has to offer, giving the number, age, color, records, price, etc. Any farmer, on the other hand, who wishes to purchase a horse or a cow, or even a carload of stock, can notify his banker of the kind and number of stock he wishes. These listings are sent to a central office, where the prospective purchaser is put in touch with the listings of stock for sale that come nearest to meeting his requirements, and which are situated as close as possible to his locality.

With the development of the work of the Exchange, we found that there was a large number of inquiries coming in for carload lots of improved dairy cattle. In order to handle these buyers efficiently, it was necessary to secure reliable field men. This was done by getting in touch with local banks and having the banker recommend a reliable man who was a good judge of stock, who was well acquainted with the farmers and commanded their respect, and who was in a position to meet buyers with his automobile and take them from farm to farm, show them the stock that was for sale, and, when found satisfactory by the buyer, help in assembling, testing and shipping.

The Services of Field Men
These field men are expected to keep posted on the livestock for sale in their respective communities. They are to refer the buyers away from herds that are known to be affected with tuberculosis, or that have contagious abortion. In other words, these field men are expected to give a square deal to both the seller and the buyer. For the services rendered by the Banker-Farmer Exchange, including the services of the field man and his automobile, the buyer pays a 5 per cent commission. This commission is divided equally with the local field man.

During 1922, the Exchange experienced a marked growth. It had inquiries for over 12,000 head of dairy cattle, an increase of 50 per cent over the preceding year. The records show 58 carloads sold, as compared with 23 carloads in 1921. Of these, nine carloads went to the state of Maryland, eight to Illinois, four each to Ohio and Minnesota, three each to Iowa, North Dakota and Missouri, two each to Montana, South Dakota, Florida, Mississippi and Canada, and one each to Washington, Michigan, Indiana, Georgia, New York and Kansas. The balance were sold to parties in Wisconsin.

Sales Greatly Increased
The value of the livestock sold during the year amounted to $115,575, as compared with $37,082 in 1921. The business transacted during the year showed an increase of over 165 per cent.

An encouraging feature of the work is found in the repeat orders. Buyers seem to be pleased with the service they have received and are not only coming back themselves, but are referring others to the Exchange. Another encouraging feature of the work is the increased interest that is developing in the state. Parties are writing the Exchange for bulls with records and of certain lines of breeding, and are also writing for cows and heifers of foundation stock. With the development of this type of work, the Banker-Farmer Exchange will be of material assistance in developing and improving the livestock of the state.

CHARGED WITH SHOOTING
Mott, N. D., May 16—Frank Dietz,

rancher, was bound over to district court on the charge of shooting Samuel Myron another rancher. According to the story told authorities Mr. Dietz, following a drinking party, went to his home on the Charlie Merry ranch and Myron and a companion followed. It is asserted that Dietz ordered them away and that when they refused he opened fire with a revolver, shooting through the door of a room. One shot took effect in Myron's hip.

Myron was taken to Mott where physicians pronounced his wound as not serious.

More for Your Money

By measuring things against each other as our grandmothers did when they swapped eggs for calico, we get the clearest idea of values.

Coal and wages make up more than half the manufacturing cost of cement.

The chart above shows price fluctuations for portland cement, coal and wages during the past ten years. In each case 100 is used to represent 1913 figures, by the Government departments which compiled these statistics.

Translated into "eggs and calico" language this chart shows that a ton of coal would buy nearly twice as much cement in 1922 as in 1913. A day's wages also would buy more cement in 1922 than in 1913.

This means that even though coal and wages make up more than half its manufacturing cost, cement is now relatively lower in price than either coal or wages.

WHY THEY RUN

Susie Hetlock, 22, claims the dishwashing championship of the world. Susie works in the kitchen of the Pantall Hotel in Punxsutawney, Pa.

Between meals, the kitchen help got talking about the marathon dancers—and why a marathon is rarely attempted at some useful task. Susie began boasting about how long she could perform with dishpan and soap. Bets were made.

Susie washed dishes 31 hours straight without stopping. She needn't worry about her laurels. No danger of marathon dishwashing or any other kind of housework becoming epidemic.

The question that started Susie performing remains unsettled. Namely: "Why do endurance contestants almost without exception waste their energy on such trivialities as dancing and running, and rarely at useful tasks?"

Trying to figure it out, you become mired to the neck in psychology.

Probably it's because a useful task nearly always involves some sort of compulsion, against which we all have an instinctive spirit of revolt. Not many centuries since most of our ancestors were slaves of one sort or other. Freedom was a delusion, with the peasant toiling to support monarchs or other so-called nobility in grand style. (Modern monarchs are alarm clock and cost of living.)

Instinctively we resent even the rulership exerted over us by nature—her making it compulsory for us to work if we want to survive.

The less compulsion, the less spirit of revolt. That's why pleasant working conditions and liberal pay increase the average person's efficiency—theoretically, at least.

Revolt against compulsory tasks, we gladly welcome anything that doesn't involve compulsion—for instance, recreation or amusement—regardless of how much labor is involved.

Remember how Tom Sawyer induced his pals to whitewash the fence for him? He made the task recreation by removing the compulsory feature.

Willie will toil until ready to drop in his tracks, building a shanty or tramping with the Boy Scouts. But he groans when asked to go to the corner store or carry out the ashes.

Considering our instinctive aversion to compulsion, it's a psychological mystery that we submit to any form of authority—political, industrial or home. Whenever we abide by rulership, it's merely acceptance of the lesser of two evils.

POWER

Electricity will be transmitted through the air by radio from power plants to airplanes, predicts Prof. Hugh S. Taylor of Princeton. That would save carrying heavy fuel. It is not a new prediction, and it will come true as surely as the sun rises and sets.

Coal, instead of long and expensive hauls to consumers, will be burned at the mines. The electric power thus generated will be broadcast, and picked up by people who want it, the same as we now pick up radio music. But with power traveling through the air what would prevent outsiders from tapping what they wanted without paying for it? The power might have to be free to everybody, its production cost provided by taxing everybody. Government management of business may become increasingly necessary with new inventions.

YOU

In private offices, corporation heads are discussing whether the sugar boycott is the beginning of another buyers' strike, a revolt against advancing prices—such as precipitated the business crash in 1920. Probably not. But price is rarely higher than consumers at heart are willing to pay. Consumers do not have to buy anything (except a few necessities) unless they want to.

Capital has leagued itself in enormous combinations. Labor in most lines is organized. Combinations of consumers, to enforce their rights, will come into existence on a big scale one of these days. Such events as the sugar boycott are the faint rumbles of a slowly approaching storm.

COUNTERFEIT

Police in Riga raid a secret printing plant and find tons of freshly printed Russian paper money, undated, backed by the government of the czar.

This looks as if royalists are preparing thoroughly for a counter revolution. It is not impossible that Trotsky will wind up his career back again blocking hats in New York's East Side.

MILLIONS

Tourists from America will spend 125 million dollars this year in France, bankers estimate. That would leave a snug balance to apply on what France owes Uncle Sam, but the French army will need it, and more.

Europe will never get out of the swamp until she disarms. The causes for gun toting must be removed first.

TARIFF

Uncle Sam in the last two months has been collecting tariff duties on imported goods at the rate of about 600 million dollars a year.

Even the tariff's enemies must admit that as a form of painless extraction it beats any other kind of indirect taxation.

MEDALS

Great Britain has issued a total of 14 million medals for service in the World War. With them went 1800 miles of ribbon. So much for the men who did the fighting.

You have observed that the great oil fields in the Near East, part of the war plunder, go to rich corporations and not to the soldiers. Hokum: To the victor belong the spoils.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

THE NEW CREAM GRADES

We believe the Dickinson Town Criers have been given a bum steer by somebody who has gone off half cocked in the matter of cream grades, to which the Criers object. To us opposition on the grounds stated resolves itself into opposition to a proposition that, while at present penalizing those farmers who do not take all the care they might of their cream before marketing it, or who are beset at this time of year by onion flavors, will in the end bring about a better marketable cream, for few men will continue in error when they see their neighbor gaining rapidly by more careful handling of his product.

Since the receipt of the Dickinson protest we have made careful inquiries and have not been able to find a single cream expert who says the order of wild onion weed pests can be eliminated from cream or butter. Neither have we been able to find that the dairy department has been influenced by cream buyers in instituting the grading system, while on the contrary the new system has met the approval of the highest scientific authorities of the country as the only way which will enable farmers to get out of their cream all the profit possible.

It is undoubtedly true the Slope-crocity is particularly hurt in its natural pasturage by the wild onion and other weeds giving it flavors; it is also true that there are ways in which a large part of this detriment may be eliminated at the farm; there is also a difference in the way various cows are affected by these pests, some escaping entirely, so a careful watch of the cream from the various animals and the separation of their milk will in some measure lessen this misfortune, and the low grade of all the combined product can be reduced in this and other ways, as mentioned in this paper last week. The onion plague lasts but a small part of the year and it seems to us that a good system ought not to be discarded because for a short period it works some hardship.

The farmer who cleans his wheat will get a better price for it; the farm wife who brings clean and uniformly sized eggs to market will get a premium if she seeks the right market; pure, sweet butter made in a sanitary manner tops the market. Then why should we not strive to raise the standard of our cream product, instead of being happy in having it all go No. 2 or rejected because we don't want to take proper care in gathering and keeping it?

When we revise we must revise upward, not downward. Let us put a premium on the best and not encourage a mediocre product. —Beach Advance.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

"The next thing," said Mister Tatters, the Raggy Man, to the twins in Raggy Land, is to help the Chimney Sweep sweep out the chimneys. We Raggies help him every year. Do you wish to come along?"

"Oh, yes!" said Nancy, who usually decided everything for her brother as well as herself. "Where does he live?"

"He lives under the hill by the old water-fall, the better to wash his brooms," answered Mr. Tatters. "He keeps a dozen and three-quarters because each of us has to have one."

So away they all went to the water-fall. Mister Tatters leading the way and Nancy and Nick and Rag Tag and Bob Tail and Vagabond and Shabby Coat and Harum Scrum and all the other Raggies following.

There stood the Chimney Sweep waiting, the brooms in a row behind him.

"I'm glad you have come," he said. "We'll be off at once. The chimneys are so full of soot the stoves won't draw. Only this morning the Baker Man spoiled a baking of bread."

"Then Nancy and Nick can go there and clean out his chimneys at once," said Mister Tatters, the Raggy Man, to the Chimney Sweep. "I'm sure they are willing."

"Certainly," said Nancy obligingly. "Where does he live?"

"He lives in town," answered the Sweep. "His house is the second one on the second street. Here are the brooms!"

Away went the Twins in their Magic Shoes to the Baker Man's house.

Down the big chimney they slid and began to sweep. But the Baker Man had nine lemon pies in the oven and the soot got in every one. Instead of white meringue on top, they had black.

"I'll just charge ten cents apiece extra for them," said the Baker Man, "for it's most unusual to have black lemon pies."

The Raggies and the Twins and the Sweep swept every chimney clean that day. Then the Sweep went back to wash his brooms at the water-fall and the Twins went back with Mister Tatters to Raggy Land.

LESLIE PRESCOTT TO THE GAY, LITTLE MARQUESE, IN CASE OF THE SECRET DRAWER

I wonder, gay little Marquise, if it is really true that "this dear place of silence" which has kept all your secrets, will keep mine. For you know I am the next woman who has found her way into it.

I am going to "disgorge my over-charged heart" to you, little Marquise. Because you have been so long dusting and memories.

I know you will keep my secrets if, at the end of my life, I do as you did and burn these letters one by one, leaving the secret drawer to the next woman who finds it. (She will have to find it as I will never give up your secret.)

I wonder if you were always happy, if your "kinky lover" never spoke to you in anger.

Perhaps he did not for you never married him, you know.

A note of annoyance never came into Jack's voice before we were married. Now, however, with the best intentions in the world, I have made Jack so angry with me that he has hardly spoken to me for three days.

I still think that he is quite as much to blame as I because he would have nothing to do with the setting of our home, and so I, who would not let me consult him as to prices.

He seemed to think that I should know everything about housekeeping, house furnishing, house budgets and how to spend money economically, as he does about advertising.

"That's splendid, Leslie," he said, and after dinner we started.

I little knew to what.

I expect often you felt like passing him over your dainty scrap of a lace handkerchief if it wasn't so wet with your own tears.

Oh, little Marquise, I wonder if you found out the truth of what some woman who came after you has said that "one must shed gallons of tears before one comes to know that nothing or no one in this world is worth one."

I have pretty nearly shed my gallon, I think, but I haven't come yet to thinking that Jack isn't worth a tear. When I think how cross he has been to me, my eyes overflow again. They have been all swollen and red for a long time and Jack never noticed it!

It all began when I showed him the lease of the apartment. Jack came home three nights ago, evidently feeling splendid. He had made a wonderful contract that day and the first thing he said to me was that he was sure of a raise in his salary.

I thought this would be a good time to show him the house and the furniture, the lease and so I said, "I have got another lovely surprise for you Jack. The house is all ready. We can move into it tomorrow. I want you to come over and see it this evening and while you are at the office I'll move our clothes over."

"That's splendid, Leslie," he said, and after dinner we started.

EVERETT TRUE

BY CONDO

YES, YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS IT BECAUSE IT'S MIGHTY GOOD. IN THE FIRST ACT THE HERO IS ACCUSED OF—

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray occupies the most expensive suite in the most exclusive hotel in Dallas. He introduces himself to the hotel manager, to the president of the largest bank and the mayor of Dallas. The leading newspaper gives Gray a write-up in which it is hinted that he is backed by large oil interests. For a friend, who is vice president of the biggest jewelry house in Dallas, Gray takes a trip to Ranger to sell valuable diamonds to Gus Briskow. Gray meets Ma Briskow, Allegheny, the daughter, and Ozark, the son. The family tries to make Gray feel at home.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Brother and sister exchanged glances; the father considered briefly, smilingly, then he said, "With oil at three an' a quarter, it wouldn't take long for a twelve-hundred barrel to get the hull caboodle, would it?"

"Is your well producing twelve hundred barrels a day?"

"Hub!" Briskow, junior, grinned at his sister, exposing a mouth full of teeth as white and as sound as railroad crockery, but his next words were directly at Gray: "We got four wells and the potest one is makin' twelve hundred bar'l."

The guests' mental calculations as to the Briskow royalties were interrupted by an announcement that dinner was ready, whereupon the father announced:

"Mister, it looks like you'd have to stay overnight with us, 'cause I got important business after dinner an' I wouldn't trust Ma to pick out no jewelry by herself—them prices would skeer her to death. We're ignorant people and we ain't used to spendin' money, so it'll take time for us to make up our minds. Kin you wait?"

"I'll stay as long as you'll keep me," Gray declared, heartily.

A moment later, having learned that a place at the table had been set for his driver as well as himself, Gray stepped out to summon the man and to effect the necessary change in his arrangements. He was not surprised to find the chauffeur with nose flattened against a pane of the front-room window, his hands cupped over his eyes. Ignoring the fellow's confusion at being discovered, Gray told him of his change of plan and instructed him to drive back to Ranger and to return late the following afternoon. Then he led the way toward the kitchen.

That stay at the Briskows' turned out to be less disagreeable than the visitor had anticipated, for the afternoon was spent with Buddy examining the Briskow wells and others near by.

They got along together swimmingly; in fact, they grew thicker than thieves in the course of time. The older man soon became conscious of the fact that he was being studied, analyzed, even copied—the sincerest form of flattery—and it pleased his vanity.

When Gray offered him a cigar, Buddy rudely took the gold case out of his hand and examined it, then he laughed in raucous delight.

"Gosh! I never knew men had purty things. I—I'm goin' to get me one like that."

"Do you like it?"

"Geel! It's swell!"

"Good! I'll make you a present of it."

Buddy stared at the speaker in speechless surprise.

"Nobody never give me a present," Buddy said. "Not one that I wanted. I never had nothing that I didn't have to have and couldn't get along without. This cigar case is worth more'n all the stuff I ever owned. An' I'm sure obliged to you."

He replaced the article in Gray's hand.

"Eh? Won't you accept it? Why not?"

"I—Oh, I dunno."

Gray pondered this refusal for a moment before saying, "Perhaps you think I'm—trying to make a good impression on you, so you'll buy some diamonds?"

"Mebbe," Buddy averted his eyes. He was in real distress.

"Um-m! I ought to punch your head," Gray slipped the case into young Briskow's pocket. "If don't have to bribe people. Some day you'll realize that I like you."

"Honest?"

"Cross my heart."

The boy laughed in frank delight, his brown cheeks colored, his eyes sparkled. "Gosh!" said he, "I like you!" For some time thereafter he remained red and silent but he kept one big hand in the pocket where lay the gold cigar case. There was a wordless song in Buddy Briskow's heart for—he had made a friend. And such a friend! Gray made his conquest doubly secure by engaging the young Behemoth in a scuffle and playfully putting him on his back. Defeat, at other hands Ozzak to the point of frenzy. It would have been considered by him an indignity and a disgrace. Now, however, he looked upon it as a natural and wholly satisfactory demonstration of his idols supreme prowess, and he roared with delight at being bested.

They were red in the face, out of breath, and soaked with perspiration, when Pa Briskow drove up in his expensive new touring car.

By this time Buddy's admiration had turned to adulation; he had passed under the yoke and he gloried shamelessly as his captive state. At supper time he appeared with his hair, wetly combed in imitation of Gray's. He wore a necktie, too, and into it he had fastened a cheap brass stickpin, much as Gray wore his.

Pa Briskow was scarcely less observant than his son. He watched

Gray's every move; he sounded him out adroitly; he pondered the lightest word. After the supper things had been cleared away and the dishes washed the entire family adjourned to the front room and again examined the jewelry. It was an absorbing task, they did not hurry it. Not until the following afternoon in fact, did they finally make their selections. The check was one of five figures.

When it drew near the time for Gray to leave, he had announced that the driver of his hired car had been instructed to return for him, there was protest, loud and earnest, from the Briskows, father and son. Buddy actually suffled at being denied the pleasure of driving his hero to town in the new car.

Pa Briskow was worried for the security of the diamonds, and assured Gray that it was unsafe to trust those serviceable drivers.

But the latter, seeing a threat to his carefully-matured plans, refused to listen. "There's one thing you can do for me," he told them. "You can give me a pint of cream."

"Cream? What for?" The family regarded him with amazement.

"I'm fond of it. If you have no cream, milk will do."

"Pshaw! I'll put up a hull basket of lurch for you," Mrs. Briskow declared. "Buddy, get them eggs out of the nest in the garden, an' a jar of them peach preserves, while I make up a pan of biscuits."

Protest was unavailing. When the others had hurried away, Pa Briskow said: "I been studyin' you, Mister Gray, and I would skeer her to death. We're ignorant people and we ain't used to spendin' money, so it'll take time for us to make up our minds. Kin you wait?"

"I'll stay as long as you'll keep me," Gray declared, heartily.

May Festival Consists of Dancing Contest

The "May Festival" to be presented by the girls of the high school gymnasium classes on the high school lawn Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock under the direction of Miss M. Walker derives its plot from the original May fete which takes place in European countries.

In this the lads and lasses depart at sunrise for the woods for a day of happiness and gaiety gathering flowers, singing and dancing. At sunset they return, decorate their houses and lawns with the flowers and twigs which they gathered during the day. The remainder of the day is spent in contests, dancing and singing.

The people from all nations happening to be present take part in the jollity. The local players representing the spirit of the old will present the dancing phase of the fete. It is to be in the form of contests between dancers from different countries.

Representing America, wins the contest. The order of the dances follows:

Solo..... Highland Fling
Dutch Dance..... 1st period gymnasium class.
Spanish Dance..... 1st and 2nd period gymnasium classes.
Chinese Dance..... 5th period gymnasium class.
Group Dance..... The Garland
Solo..... The Moon Dance
Solo..... The Columbian
Solo..... Evelyn George

May Festival Consists of Dancing Contest

The "May Festival" to be presented by the girls of the high school gymnasium classes on the high school lawn Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock under the direction of Miss Mae Walker derives its plot from the original May fete which takes place in European countries.

In this the lads and lasses depart at sunrise for the woods for a day of happiness and gaiety gathering flowers, singing, and dancing. At sunset they return, decorate their houses and lattices with the flowers and twigs which they gathered during the day. The remainder of the day is spent in contests, dancing and singing.

The people from all nations happening to be present take part in the jollity. The local players representing the spirit of the old will prevent the dancing phase of the fete. It is to be in the form of contests between dancers from different countries.

Columbia, representing America, wins the contest. The order of the dances follows:

Solo Highland Fling
Dutch Dance 1st period gymnasium class.
Spanish Dance 1st and 2nd period gymnasium classes.
Chinese Dance 5th period gymnasium class.
Group Dance The Garland
Louise Berndt, Dorothy Landers, Audrey Flow, Helen Gross, Ruth Rawlings, and Esther Katz.
Pierrot and Pierrette Louise Berndt and Esther Katz.
Frisch Dells 2nd period gymnasium class.

My Facial Youth

One reason why my beauty lasts

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I am no longer young. Some of you remember me as a stage star over 30 years ago. Yet you see me still playing youthful parts, and I look like a girl of 19.

Many girls one-third my age envy my youthful bloom. Countless women marvel at my smooth, soft, rosy skin. And thousands have asked me to tell them the methods I employ.

I am doing that now, as a duty to my sex. I have seen these methods bring to scores of my friends the results they brought to me. So I am convinced that millions of women can, in these ways, multiply their beauty and retain their youth.

My Famous Cleanser
I have a liquid cleanser which does much for me. I call it my Facial Youth. Lucie Lanthele, the famous Parisian beauty, gave me the formula many years ago. Now the world's greatest experts in beauty are advising this formula, but they price it too high for most women.

My Facial Youth contains no animal, no vegetable fat. So it cannot grow hair on the face. It cannot assimilate in any way with the skin. It simply penetrates to clean the skin to its depths. When I wipe it off, all the oil, grime and dead skin come out with it. The skin is clean.

I apply Facial Youth twice daily, and whenever else the skin needs cleaning. And every use brings out new beauty and new bloom.

No Cream Does This
Perhaps you use a cleansing cream. So once did I. But you will be surprised at the extra grime my Facial Youth removes. I anoint my whole body with Facial Youth before I take a bath, and it keeps me doubly clean. You will marvel at the dirt which water fails to reach.

But Facial Youth does more than cleanse. It softens and whitens, smooths and firms. There is lemon in it. It combats lines and wrinkles. You will always clean your skin in this way when you once see what it does.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth is supplied by all druggists, all dealers in toilet goods. Price 75c per bottle. Also my Youth Cream—my fruity cold cream—which should always follow. Also my White Youth Clay. Also my Hair Youth, to which I owe my thick, lustrous, silky hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

Try my Facial Youth and let it show you what a clean skin means. Then I believe you will also wish the other three helps I employ.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

THE NEW CREAM GRADES

We believe the Dickinson Town Criers have been given a bum steer by somebody who has gone off half cocked in the matter of cream grades, to which the Criers object. To us opposition on the grounds stated resolves itself into opposition to a proposition that, while at present penalizing those farmers who do not take all the care they might of their cream before marketing it, or who are hest at this time of year by onion flavors, will in the end bring about a better marketable cream for few men will continue in error when they see their neighbor gaining rapidly by more careful handling of his product.

Since the receipt of the Dickinson protest we have made careful inquiries and have not been able to find a single cream expert who says the order of wild onion weeds pests can be eliminated from cream or butter. Neither have we been able to find that the dairy department has been influenced by cream buyers in instituting the grading system, while on the contrary the new system has met the approval of the highest scientific authorities of the country as the only way which will enable farmers to get out of their cream all the profit possible.

It is undoubtedly true the Slope country is particularly hurt in its natural pasturage by the wild onion and other weeds giving it flavors; it is also true that there are ways in which a large part of this detriment may be eliminated at the farm; there is also a difference in the way various cows are affected by these pests, some escaping entirely, so a careful watch of the cream from the various animals and the separation of their milk will in some measure lessen this misfortune, and the low grade of all the combined product can be reduced in this and other ways, as mentioned in this paper last week. The onion plague lasts but a small part of the year and it seems to us that a good system ought not to be discarded because for a short period it works some hardship.

The farmer who cleans his wheat will get a better price for it; the farm wife who brings clean and uniformly sized eggs to market will get a premium if she seeks the right market; pure, sweet butter made in a sanitary manner tops the market. Then why should we not strive to raise the standard of our cream product, instead of being happy in having it all go No. 2 or No. 3 because we don't want to take proper care in gathering and keeping it?

When we advise we must revise upward; not downward. Let us put a premium on the best and not encourage a mediocre product. A. Beach Advance.

FLOWING GOLD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray occupies the most opulent suite in this most exclusive hotel in Dallas. He introduces himself to the hotel manager, to the president of the largest bank and the mayor of Dallas. The leading newspaper gives Gray a write-up in which it is hinted that he is backed by large oil interests. For a friend, who is vice president of the biggest jewelry house in Dallas, Gray takes a trip to Ranger to sell valuable diamonds to Gus Briskow. Gray meets Ma Briskow, Allegheny, the daughter, and Ozark, the son. The family tries to make Gray feel at home.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Brother and sister exchanged glances; the father considered briefly, smilingly, then he said, "With all at three and a quarter, it wouldn't take long for a twelve-hundred barrel to get the bull caboodle, would it?"

"Is your well producing twelve hundred barrels a day?"

"Huh!" Briskow, junior, grinned at his sister, exposing a mouth full of teeth as white and as sound as railroad crockery, but his next words were directly at Gray: "We got four wells and the potest one is makin' twelve hundred bar'l."

The guests' mental calculations as to the Briskow royalties were interrupted by an announcement—that dinner was ready; whereupon the father announced:

"Mister, it looks like you'd have to stay overnight with us, 'cause I got important business after dinner an' I wouldn't trust Ma to pick out no jewelry by herself—them prices would skeer her to death. We're ignorant people and we ain't used to spendin' money, so it'll take time for us to make up our minds. Kin you wait?"

"I'll stay as long as you'll keep me," Gray declared, heartily.

A moment later, having learned that a place at the table had been set for his driver as well as himself, Gray stepped out to summon the man and to effect the necessary change in his arrangements. He was not surprised to find the chauffeur with nose flattened against a pane of the front-room window, his hands cupped over his eyes, ignoring the fellow's confusion at being discovered. Gray told him of his change of plan and instructed him to drive back to Ranger and to return late the following afternoon. Then he led the way toward the kitchen.

That stay at the Briskows' turned out to be less irksome than the visitor had anticipated, for the afternoon was spent with Buddy examining the Briskow wells and others nearby.

They got along together swimmingly; in fact, they grew thicker than thieves in the course of time. The older man soon became conscious of the fact that he was being studied, analyzed, even copied—the sincerest form of flattery—and it pleased his vanity.

When Gray offered him a cigarette, Buddy rudely took the gold case out of his hand and examined it, then he laughed in raucous delight.

"Good! I never knew men had put things like I'm goin' to get me one like that!"

"Do you like it?"

"Geel! It's swell!"

"Good! I'll make you a present of it."

Buddy stared at the speaker in speechless surprise.

"Nobody never give me a present," Buddy said. "Not one that I wanted. I never had nothing that I didn't want to have and couldn't get along without. This cigarette case is worth more'n all the stuff I ever owned, an' I'm sure obliged to you." He replaced the article in Gray's hand.

"Eh? Won't you accept it? Why not?"

"I—Oh, I dunno."

Gray pondered this refusal for a moment before saying, "Perhaps you think I'm trying to make a good impression on you, so you'll buy some diamonds?"

"Mebbe," Buddy averted his eyes. He was in real distress.

"Um—m! I ought to punch your head," Gray slipped the case into young Briskow's pocket. "I don't have to bribe people. Some day you'll realize that I like you."

"Honest?"

"Cross my heart."

The boy laughed in frank delight, his brown cheeks colored, his eyes sparkling. "Gosh!" said he, "I like you! For some time thereafter he remained quiet and silent but he kept one big hand in the pocket where lay the gold cigarette case. There was a wordless song in Buddy Briskow's heart for he had made a friend. And such a friend! Gray made his conquest doubly secure by engaging the young Behemoth in a scuffle and playfully putting him on his back. Defeat at other hands than Gray's would have enraged Ozark to the point of frenzy. It would have been considered by him an indignity and a disgrace. Now, however, he looked upon it as a natural and wholly satisfactory demonstration of his idols supreme prowess, and he roared with delight at being bested.

They were red in the face, out of breath, and soaked with perspiration, when Pa Briskow drove up in his expensive new touring car.

By this time Buddy's admiration had turned to adulation; he had passed under the yoke and he gloried shamelessly as his captive state. At supper time he appeared with his hair, wetly combed in imitation of Gray's. He wore a necktie, too, and into it he had fastened a cheap brass stickpin, much as Gray wore his.

Pa Briskow was scarcely less subservient than his son, Eg, watched

WHY THEY RUN

Susie Hetlock, 22, claims the dishwashing championship of the world. Susie works in the kitchen of the Pantall Hotel in Punxsutawney, Pa.

Between meals, the kitchen help got talking about the marathon dancers—and why a marathon is rarely attempted at some useful task. Susie began boasting about how long she could perform with dishpan and sopa. Bets were made.

Susie washed dishes 31 hours straight without stopping. She needn't worry about her laurels. No danger of marathon dishwashing or any other kind of housework becoming epidemic.

The question that started Susie performing remains unsettled. Namely: "Why do endurance contestants almost without exception waste their energy on such trivialities as dancing and running, and rarely at useful tasks?"

Trying to figure it out, you become mired to the neck in psychology.

Probably it's because a useful task nearly always involves some sort of compulsion, against which we all have an instinctive spirit of revolt. Not many centuries since most of our ancestors were slaves of one sort or other. Freedom was a delusion, with the peasant toiling to support monarchs or other so-called nobility in grand style. (Modern monarchs are alarm clock and cost of living.)

Instinctively we resent even the rulership exerted over us by nature—her making it compulsory for us to work if we want to survive.

The less compulsion, the less spirit of revolt. That's why pleasant working conditions and liberal pay increase the average person's efficiency—theoretically, at least.

Revolting against compulsory tasks, we gladly welcome anything that doesn't involve compulsion—for instance, recreation or amusement—regardless of how much labor is involved.

Remember how Tom Sawyer induced his pals to whitewash the fence for him? He made the task recreation by removing the compulsory feature.

Willie will toil until ready to drop in his tracks, building a shanty or tramping with the Boy Scouts. But he groans when asked to go to the corner store or carry out the ashes.

Considering our instinctive aversion to compulsion, it's a psychological mystery that we submit to any form of authority—political, industrial or home. Whenever we abide by rulership, it's merely acceptance of the lesser of two evils.

POWER

Electricity will be transmitted through the air by radio from power plants to airplanes, predicts Prof. Hugh S. Taylor of Princeton. That would save carrying heavy fuel. It is not a new prediction, and it will come true as surely as the sun rises and sets.

Coal, instead of long and expensive hauls to consumers, will be burned at the mines. The electric power thus generated will be broadcast, and picked up by people who want it, the same as we now pick up radio music. But with power traveling through the air what would prevent outsiders from tapping what they wanted without paying for it? The power might have to be free to everybody, its production cost—provided by taxing everybody. Government management of business may become increasingly necessary with new inventions.

YOU

In private offices, corporation heads are discussing whether the sugar boycott is the beginning of another buyers' strike, a revolt against advancing prices—such as precipitated the business crash in 1920. Probably not. But price is rarely higher than consumers at heart are willing to pay. Consumers do not have to buy anything (except a few necessities) unless they want to.

Capital has leagued itself in enormous combinations. Labor in most lines is organized. Combinations of consumers, to enforce their rights, will come into existence on a big scale one of these days. Such events as the sugar boycott are the faint rumbles of a slowly approaching storm.

COUNTERFEIT

Police in Riga raid a secret printing plant and find tons of freshly printed Russian paper money, undated, backed by the government of the czar.

This looks as if royalists are preparing thoroughly for a counter revolution. It is not impossible that Trotzky will wind up his career back again blocking hats in New York's East Side.

MILLIONS

Tourists from America will spend 125 million dollars this year in France, bankers estimate. That would leave a snug balance to apply on what France owes Uncle Sam, but the French army will need it, and more.

Europe will never get out of the swamp until she disarms. The causes for gun toting must be removed first.

TARIFF

Uncle Sam in the last two-months has been collecting tariff duties on imported goods at the rate of about 600 million dollars a year.

Even the tariff's enemies must admit that as a form of painless extraction it beats any other kind of indirect taxation.

MEDALS

Great Britain has issued a total of 14 million medals for service in the World War. With them went 1800 miles of ribbon. So much for the men who did the fighting.

You have observed that the great oil fields in the Near East, port of the war plunder, go to rich corporations and not to the soldiers. Hokus: To the victor belong the spoils.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

"The next thing," said Mister Tatters, the Raggy Man, to the twins in Raggy Land, is to help the Chimney Sweep sweep out the chimneys. Raggy helps him every year. Do you wish to come along?"

"Oh, yes!" said Nancy, who usually decided everything for her brother as well as herself. "Where does he live?"

"He lives under the hill by the old water-fall, the better to wash his brooms," answered Mr. Tatters. "He keeps a dozen and three-quarters because each of us has to have one."

So away they all went to the water-fall. Mister Tatters leading the way and Nancy and Nick and Rag Tag and Bob Tail and Vagabond and Shabby Coat and Horum Scorum and all the other Raggies following.

There stood the Chimney Sweep waiting, the brooms in a row behind him.

"I'm glad you have come," he said. "We'll be off at once. The chimneys are so full of soot the stoves won't draw. Only this morning the Baker Man spoiled a baking of bread."

"Then Nancy and Nick can go there and clean out his chimneys at once," said Mister Tatters, the Raggy Man, to the Chimney Sweep. "I'm sure they are willing."

"Certainly," said Nancy obligingly. "Where does he live?"

"He lives in town," answered the Sweep. "His house is the second one on the second street. Here are the brooms."

Away went the Twins in their Magic Shoes to the Baker Man's house.

Down the big chimney they slid and began to sweep. But the Baker Man had nine lemon pies in the oven and the soot got in every one. Instead of white meringue on top, they had black.

"I'll just charge ten cents apiece extra for them," said the Baker Man. "For it's most unusual to have black lemon pies."

The Raggies and the Twins and the Sweep swept every chimney clean that day. Then the Sweep went back to wash his brooms at the water-fall and the Twins went back with Mister Tatters to Raggy Land.

AN INTIMATE STORY OF LESLIE LITTLE MARQUISE IN CASE OF THE SECRET DRAWER

I wonder, gay little Marquise, if it is really true that "this dear place of silence," which has kept all your secrets, will keep mine. For you know I am the next woman who has found her way into it.

I am going to "disgorge my overcharged heart" to you, little Marquise. Because you have been so long dead—only dust and memories. I know you will keep my secret. If, at the end of my life, I do as you did and burn these letters one by one, leaving the secret drawer to the next woman who finds it. (She will have to find it as I will never give up your secret.)

I wonder if you were always happy, if your "kingly lover" never spoke to you in anger.

Perhaps he did not for you never married him, you know.

A note of annoyance never came into Jack's voice before we were married. Now, however, with the best intentions in the world, I have made Jack so angry with me that he has hardly spoken to me for three days.

I still think that he is quite as much to blame as I because he would have nothing to do with the setting of our home; because he would not let me consult him as to prices.

He seemed to think that I should know everything about housekeeping, house furnishing, house budgeting and how to spend money economically, as he does about advertising.

Oh, gay little Marquise, did you ever have to bring such a sardin

Leave on Next Stop on Western Invasion With One Defeat in Five Games

RUTH GETS A HOMER

Chicago, May 16.—The Yankees start today on their last half of their western invasion, with every chance of being truly entrenched in first place when they re-enter their stadium to ward off the counter-attacks of the west.

On to St. Louis they go today, having taken three of four from Detroit, and two, all they played, from Cleveland. They battered Detroit for the third time yesterday, 9 to 5, in an uphill game which Elmer Smith started as a pinch hitter and Babe Ruth got his fourth home run.

Cleveland made it three straight from Washington, 10 to 9, and kept within earshot of the Yanks and a respectful distance above Philadelphia, whose mottle they measure today. Both the Boston-St. Louis and the Philadelphia-Chicago games were postponed.

John McGraw utilized a day off by cutting off two pitchers and on one of them George Walbert Lumberjack southpaw, he saved $15,000. McGraw had until yesterday to pay $15,000 or return the pitcher to the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League. The other hurler, Fred Johnson, was sent back to the San Antonio club of the Texas League. The reinstatement of Bill Ryan made the loss of one of the recruits an easy one.

In the only game not called off because of inclement weather in the National yesterday St. Louis beat Boston 10 to 5, gaining half a step on the Giants.

ASK FANS TO PAY BASEBALL SUBSCRIPTION

Must Have Money Immediately To Go Ahead With Season's Plans

Every fan who subscribed to the Bismarck baseball fund, and every fan not seen who will aid, is urged to pay his subscription this week. Local officials today received demands from some players sought for guarantees that the season will be finished, and they want to put the money in the bank to meet the guarantee. It is declared by them absolutely necessary that every dollar possible be paid in within the next two or three days. Approximately $1,700 on subscriptions was paid in yesterday, and the amount was expected to be increased today.

Canton, Master of Horses Under Czar, Will Drive Here

By NEA Service

Terre Haute, Ind., May 16.—William Caton, who for 15 years was in absolute charge of the imperial stables of Russia and master of horses under Czar Nicholas II, will drive Forest Park stable entries this summer on the Grand Circuit.

Caton has had charge of Forest Park stables, owned by Paul Kuhn, Terre Haute horse fancier, since he returned to the United States several years ago after a revolution broke out in Russia.

Caton lost almost all his personal belongings at the outbreak of the revolution. He managed to bring home a watch, bearing the Russian coat of arms, given him personally by the czar before the latter's death for winning a national derby in Russia.

Caton, while in Russia, was in charge of 500 race horses and 3000 other thoroughbreds in the Russian government stables. He went to Russia following the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893 when he was 16 years old at the repeated requests of Russian nobility.

Caton was born on Forest City farm in Cleveland, O., which is now the North Randol race track.

When the Russian revolution broke out he was forced to work three years for the government. He managed to escape and made his way to Constantinople and from there went to England. He managed to get his wife and family out of Russia before the revolution became serious.

In explaining how he came to take up horse racing, Caton said that for five generations back his people were all horse lovers. He expects the Caton name to be held up as race horse drivers through his younger son.

Plans His Entries

Caton, in planning his entries for the Grand Circuit, which opens at Cleveland the first week in July, is depending on Frisco June to lead the stables. Frisco June holds the world's record in the three-year-old class. Incidentally his record for the one-mile track is 2:01.4.

Twelve other horses, whose sire is the famous Harvester, are expected to assist in the quest of laurels for Forest Park stables.

William Donahue, known throughout the world as one of the old-time horse trainers, will be left in charge of Forest Park stables this summer to get colts in shape for the 1924 classic.

Donie Bush Is First Manager To Be Chased From Game

By NEA Service

Washington, May 15.—Donie Bush, newest of the major league managers, enjoys the distinction, if it may be so classed, of being the first manager to be chased.

In the second game of the recent series with Philadelphia, which ended in a 10 to 12, twelve-inning tie, Bush was given the air. It so happens that Umpire Holmes, one of President Johnson's new arbitrators, pointed the way to the exit.

It all happened in the twelfth inning over one called ball, with two out, a runner on second and Washington trailing by a run, the Athletics having scored in the first half. With Gossin up and the count three balls and no strikes, Umpire Holmes called the next pitch a strike. Gossin thought it was high and kicked. The moment he protested, Manager Bush, who was coach at third, rushed to the plate.

Umpire Holmes kept him going to the club house. Failure to call the pitch a ball, which would have walked Gossin, proved a good break for Washington, as he hit the next pitch for a long fly to center which was muffed, sending the tying run over the plate.

The game was called on account of darkness at the close of the inning.

Bentley Shows Poorly in National League Debut

By NEA Service

Baltimore, May 16.—The failure of Jack Bentley to shine in his first two starts as a member of the New York Giants has occasioned no great surprise among the Baltimore Orioles as well as other International League players.

Bentley's former teammates say that he is a pitcher who must be nursed along in order to make a winner out of him. In other words, it will be necessary for McGraw to pick the spots for his costly star.

In the International League Bentley was very successful against certain clubs and weak against others. Dunn very wisely picked the spots,

Herd Leads All Golfers in Hole-in-One Club

Pitching a no-hit ball game is the goal of every pitcher.

There is a thrill in such a performance that goes with nothing else in baseball.

Playing a hole-in-one in golf is on a par with pitching a no-hit game as far as thrills are concerned.

Any golfer will tell you that nothing compares with getting a long ball from the tee and upon reaching the green discover that the ball has obligingly rolled into the cup.

Many of the game's greatest golf professionals have never experienced the thrill of holing out in one.

Likewise many star pitchers of the majors have failed to break into the no-hit class.

Perhaps no golfer in the history of the sport has a record that can compare with that of Sidney Herd, the former British open champion, in this respect. On 17 different occasions during his long career on the links, Herd has enjoyed the thrill of holing out in one.

"An accurate ball from the tee plus plenty of good luck is the way to do it," explains Herd.

Billy Sunday Must Have Met Babe and Benny

By NEA Service

New York, May 16.—Wonders will never cease in sportdom.

Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, admits that dabbling in Wall Street wiped away a snug little fortune of better than a quarter of a million.

Leonard, however, says that he has replenished his bank roll until it is as fat as it ever was, and that he is going to keep it in that condition.

"I am through with Wall Street. I was cut out to be a boxer, not a stock broker. Those wise guys of Wall Street feinted me out until they had me lighter financially than my ringside weight. No more dabbling in stocks for me, nothing worse than gold bonds for mine."

In four years Babe Ruth has been cut loose from at least a quarter of a million. Unlike Leonard, Ruth has seldom dabbled in stock. He has lost most of his picking horses to come in first that finished last. Incidentally, the bookmakers got some of Leonard's money.

"No more race horse stuff for me," says Babe. "I'm through. This is to notify all touts to withhold their information as to who will win but won't."

Wonder if Billy Sunday talked to Benny and Babe.

bench, believing the ball has been caught, and then discovers that the ball has gotten away from the catcher, has he a right to make an attempt to reach first base, or is he out for running out of the line?

FIVE—Explain what is meant by a force-out?

Answers

ONE—The failure of a preceding runner to touch a base shall in no way affect the status of a succeeding runner who has touched each base in its proper order unless two men are out at the time.

TWO—The pitcher's plate shall not made when a base runner legally loses the right to the base he occupies by reason of the baseman becoming a base runner, and he is thereby forced to vacate.

Kinks o' the Links

In medal play is it possible for a player to have a short putt conceded to him or must the ball be holed out?

In medal play the ball must be holed out on every green.

If in a medal round, if no scorers have been provided by the committee in charge of the tournament, how should the scores be kept in order to insure accuracy?

If no scorers are provided, as is often the case, you should keep the score of your competitor and he should keep yours. After every hole you should compare scores with him.

If your opponent's ball strikes yours through the green or in a hazard and deflects it a considerable distance, what is the proper procedure?

It is perfectly proper to drop your ball where it originally lay, but this must be done before either of you play another stroke.

DEMPSEY MEN ON WAY WEST

Chicago, Ill., May 16.—Human punching bags for Jack Dempsey started west today to work with the champion in preparation for his title contest with Tom Gibbons at Shelby, Montana, July 4.

Johnny Dempsey, brother of the titleholder departed for Great Falls, Mont., with George Godfrey, a giant negro boxer, and Jack Burke, a light heavyweight, from Pittsburgh.

Billy Evans Says

Babe Ruth may or may not break the home-run record during the season of 1923. In order to break it Ruth must make 60 circuit drives. I don't believe that he will be able to set a new mark.

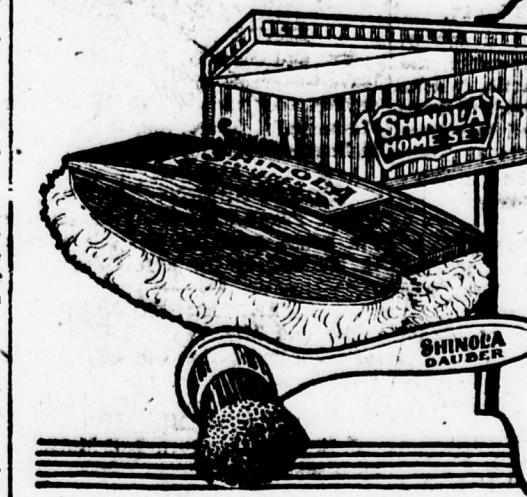

My chief reason for believing that Ruth will not better his record of 59 homers is based on the care with which all pitchers are working on Ruth. Despite the fact that many of the twirlers do not fear Ruth as much as they did a couple of years back most of the managers still have a wholesome respect for Ruth's ability and insist the pitchers use great care in dishing them up to Babe.

"The Shine for Mine"

The New York Giants had in slowing up on the big fellow has caused many American League pitchers to adopt the same tactics. The slow ball is a much harder ball to control than the fast one or the curve. Babe is refusing to go after the bad ones as he did in the world series, with the result that he is getting a great many bases on balls. There is one record that he seems certain to break.

As a result of the careful pitching that is being handed Ruth, the big fellow is not hitting home runs with the regularity with which he delivered in other years. Many of the experts are of the opinion that if Ruth doesn't hit home runs the Yankees will be up against a lost cause. I do not concur in such a belief.

Despite the fact that Ruth is not breaking any fences, it strikes me that the big fellow is going to be even more valuable to the Yanks than when he was making home runs. Of course he won't be such a big card with the fans unless he keeps pressing the home-run record, but he is going to be of greater value to his team playing his present style game.

Ruth is lighter than at any time during his major league career. The loss of about 30 pounds has made for more speed and better fielding. Already I have seen Ruth make a half dozen great catches on drives that he would have failed to reach last season. Incidentally, his arm seems stronger than ever and two of the first 10 victories scored by the Yanks were made possible by some fine throwing by Ruth, which cut off the runs needed by the opposition to decide the issue.

Ruth is hitting the ball hard this year. Line drives and hard hit ground balls seem to be his specialty. He isn't getting the distance, but is cracking out doubles and singles instead of home runs. Many of these shorter hits have won for the Yankees.

Breaking the home-run record of 59 is, I fear, too great a task to ask Ruth to perform. He may fall far shy of that mark. Yet failure to do so would not put the Yanks out of the running as many experts seem to think. On the contrary, Ruth playing his present style, which radiates team play, is as valuable, if not more so, than mere slugging as his chief asset. Babe is still a big threat even if he isn't breaking home-run records.

PETROLLE WINS BY KNOCKOUT

Jamestown, N. D., May 16.—It took Billy Petrolle of Dilworth, Minn., just 40 seconds to put Mike Ertle of Stillwater to the canvass for the count of ten here last night in the headline event on one of the best boxing cards ever presented in Jamestown. Petrolle started in right away to make things interesting and after letting Ertle shoot in his left twice he swung for him and missed. On the next blow, a right hook to the jaw, counted and put Ertle out.

WILLARD AND FIRPO SIGNED

New York, May 16.—The preliminary move toward another contest for the world heavyweight championship was made today by Tex Rickard, promoter in the signing of Jess Willard, former titleholder, and Luis Firpo, Argentine giant, for a contest to be held in New York or vicinity not later than July 7.

The winery of this engagement will be matched with Jack Dempsey in a title contest, which probably will be held next Labor Day.

WHO PAID FOR IT?

In an authoritative magazine we read:

"A certain house eight years ago did an annual business of $3,000,000 and the cost of selling the goods amounted to 8 per cent. Good advertising has since then increased their annual business to $15,000,000 and the cost of selling, including advertising expenditures, has fallen to 5 per cent. The salesmen are earning much more money, and the advertising has enabled them to do it, because while their commissions are smaller their sales are made easier and are more than trebled in volume."

Who paid for the advertising?

Not the consumer, for the price of the goods was less than it had been without advertising.

Not the manufacturer, because his total selling cost was 3 per cent less.

Not the salesmen, because they made more money.

Who did pay, then? The same inexhaustible source upon which we draw for the cost of all progress—Old Man Waste.

The most expensive institution we have today is the unsuccessful competitor—the business that drags along for years, eating up rent and salaries, and traveling expenses, trying to get orders that someone else can get and execute better and cheaper.

It is cruel, perhaps, but true that the sooner such concerns disappear, the better it is for the public. The advertising of their more aggressive and better-organized competitors brings the end quicker. And it is the money saved by putting a stop to hordes of these petty, wasteful non-successes, which pays for the advertising and cuts down the cost of the goods you buy.

Chicago Board

Chicago, May 16.—With general rains over the winter crop belt giving ample supply of moisture for sometime to come, wheat underwent moderate declines early today. Spring crop conditions, too, were regarded as favorable, most of the seeding having been done. Trade was light and consisted more or less of simultaneous buying of May and selling of July. The opening, which ranged from 1/2 to 3/4 cents lower with July $1.14 1/2 to $1.15 and September $1.13 1/2 to $1.13 3/4 was followed by a slight rally and then by downward turns before the close. Sentiment became decidedly favorable to the buying side of the wheat market in the last half of the session. Bullish crop comments came from the winter wheat belt, notwithstanding heavy rains. Attention also was given to prospects of a liberal reduction in spring wheat acreage and to strength in the foreign market. Close firm 1 1/2 to 2 1/4 cents net higher, July $1.17 1/4 to $1.17 3/4 and September $1.15 1/4 to $1.15 3/4.

Leave on Next Stop on Western Invasion With One Defeat in Five Games

RUTH GETS A HOMER

Chicago, May 16.—The Yankees start their last half of their western invasion, with every chance of being finally entrenched in first place when they re-enter their old home to ward off the counter-attacks of the west.
On to St. Louis they go today, having taken three of four from Detroit, and two, all they played, from Cleveland. They battered Detroit for the third time yesterday, 9 to 5, in an uphill game which Elmer Smith scored as a pinch hitter and Babe Ruth got his fourth home run. Cleveland made it three straight from Washington, 10 to 9, and kept within clutch of the Yanks and a respectful distance above Philadelphia, whose nifty they measure to day. Both the Boston St. Louis and the Philadelphia game were postponed.
John M. Cox utilized a day off by visiting out two pitchers and on one of them George Walsh at lumber-jack southern, he saved $15,000. Walsh had until yesterday to pay $15,000 to return the pitcher to the Portland club of the Pacific Coast league. The other hurler, Fred Johnson, was sent back to the San Antonio club of the Texas League. The 11th game of Bill Ryan made the loss of one of the recruits an easy one.
In the only game not called off because of inclement weather in the National yesterday, St. Louis beat Boston 10 to 7, gaining half a step on the Giants.

SUBSCRIPTION

Must Have Money Immediately To Go Ahead With Season's Plans

Every fan who subscribed to the Bismarck baseball fund, and every fan not seen who will aid, is urged to pay his subscription this week. Local officials today received demands from some players sought for guarantees that the season will be finished, and they want to put the money in the bank to meet the guarantee. It is declared by them absolutely necessary that every dollar possible be paid in within the next two or three days. Approximately $1700 in subscriptions was paid in yesterday, and the amount was expected to be increased today.

Canton, Master of Horses Under Czar, Will Drive Here

By NEA Service

Terre Haute, Ind., May 16.—William Caton, who for 15 years was in absolute charge of the imperial stables of Russia and master of horses under Czar Nicholas II, will drive Forest Park table entries this summer on the Grand Circuit. Caton has had charge of Forest Park stables, owned by Paul Kuhn, Terre Haute horse fancier, since he returned to the United States several years ago after a revolution broke out in Russia.
Caton lost almost all his personal belongings at the outbreak of the revolution. He managed to bring home a watch, bearing the Russian coat of arms, given him personally by the czar before the latter's death for winning a national derby in Russia.
Caton, while in Russia, was in charge of 500 race horses and 3000 other thoroughbreds in the Russian government stables. He went to Russia following the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893 when he was 16 years old at the repeated requests of Russian nobility.

Caton was born on Forest City farm in Cleveland, O., which is now the North Randall race track.
When the Russian revolution broke out he was forced to work three years for the government. He managed to escape and made his way to Constantinople and from there went to England. He managed to get his wife and family out of Russia before the revolution became serious.
In explaining how he came to take up horse racing, Caton said that for five generations back his people were all horse lovers. He expects the Caton name to be held up as a race horse driver through his younger son.

Plans His Entries

Caton, in planning his entries for the Grand Circuit, which opens at Cleveland the first week in July, is depending on Frisco June to lead the stables. Frisco June holds the world's record in the three-year-old classics, incidentally his record for the one-mile track is 2:01.4.
Twelve other horses, whose sire is the famous Harvester, are expected to assist in the quest of laurels for Forest Park stables.
William Donahue, known throughout the world as one of the old-time horse trainers, will be left in charge of Forest Park stables this summer to get colts in shape for the 1924 classic.

Donie Bush Is First Manager To Be Chased From Game

By NEA Service

Washington, May 15.—Donie Bush, newest of the major league managers, enjoys the distinction, if it may be so classed, of being the first manager to be chased.
In the second game of the recent series with Philadelphia, which ended in a 10 to 10, twelve-inning tie, Bush was given the air. It so happens that Umpire Holmes, one of President Johnson's new arbiters, pointed the way to the exit.
It all happened in the twelfth inning over one called ball, with two out, a runner on second and Washington trailing by a run, the Athletics having scored in the first half.
With Goshen up and the count three balls and no strikes, Umpire Holmes called the next pitch a strike. Goshen thought it was high and kicked. The moment he protested, Manager Bush, who was coach at third, rushed to the plate.
Umpire Holmes kept him going to the club house. Failure to call the pitch a ball, which would have walked Goshen, proved a good break for Washington, as he hit the next pitch for a long fly to center which was muffed, sending the tying run over the plate.
The game was called on account of darkness at the close of the inning.

he more than 15 inches higher than the base lines or the home plate.
THREE—The pitcher has no right to discolored the ball. Such an action on his part calls for his immediate removal from the game.
FOUR—The batsman has such a right, unless in running he ran out of line to avoid being touched. When he takes it for granted that the ball has been caught, and instead of immediately starting for the base, as he should have, he simply delays his getting there, and makes the distance that much longer.
FIVE—A force-out can only be

Bentley Shows Poorly in National League Debut

By NEA Service

Baltimore, May 16.—The failure of Jack Bentley to start in his first game as a member of the New York Giants has occasioned no great surprise among the Baltimore Orioles as well as other International League players.
Bentley's former teammates say that he is a pitcher who must be nursed along in order to make a winner out of him. In other words it will be necessary for McGraw to pick the spots for his early start.
In the International League Bentley was very successful against certain clubs, and weak against others. Dunt very nicely picked the spots, using him only against clubs that failed to take kindly with his delivery.

Bentley also has a peculiar long windup that is certain to handicap him in the National League. In delivering the ball to the batter Bentley invariably uses the long windup. Just as soon as the National League players get wise to this peculiarity in his delivery they are sure to take all kinds of liberties on the bases.
Of the three high priced stars, Bentley, O'Connell and Kinn, who cost the major leagues nearly a million dollars, Kinn was the only one who has measured up to major league standards.

Herd Leads All Golfers in Hole-in-One Club

Pitching a go hit ball game is the goal of every pitcher. There is a thrill in such a pitcher's success that goes with nothing else in baseball.
Playing a hole-in-one in golf is on a par with pitching a no-hit game as far as thrills are concerned.
Any golfer will tell you that nothing compares with getting a long ball from the tee and upon reaching the green discover that the ball has obligingly rolled into the cup.
Many of the game's greatest golf professionals have never experienced the thrill of holing out in one.

Lewis, a many star pitcher of the major leagues, has failed to break into the no hit class.
Perhaps no golfer in the history of the sport has a record that can compare with that of Sidney Herd, the former British open champion, in this respect. On 17 different occasions during his long career on the links, Herd has enjoyed the thrill of holing out in one.
"An accurate ball from the tee plus plenty of good luck is the way to do it," explains Herd.

Billy Sunday Must Have Met Babe and Benny

By NEA Service

New York, May 16.—Wonders will never cease in sportdom.
Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, admits that dabbling in Wall Street wiped away a snug little fortune of better than a quarter of a million.
Leonard, however, says that he has replenished his bank roll until it is as fat as it ever was, and that he is going to keep it in that condition.
"I am through with Wall Street. I was cut out to be a boxer, not a stock broker. Those wise guys of Wall Street feinted me out until they had me lighter financially than my ringside weight. No more dabbling in stocks for me, nothing worse than gold bonds for mine."

In four years Babe Ruth has been out loose from at least a quarter of a million. Unlike Leonard, Ruth has seldom dabbled in stock. He has lost most of his picking horses to come in first that finished last. Incidentally, the bookmakers got some of Leonard's money.
"No more race horse stuff for mine," says Babe. "I'm through. This is to notify all touts to withhold their information as to who will win but won't."
Wonder if Billy Sunday talked to Benny and Babe.

Do You Know Baseball?

Questions
ONE—If, with a runner on first, the batsman hits a home run, and the runner on first fails to touch third, does that have any effect on the man who hit the home run?
TWO—To what distance can the pitcher's mound be elevated?
THREE—Has the pitcher the right to discolored the ball?
FOUR—If a batsman after missing the third strike starts for his bench, believing the ball has been caught, and then discovers that the ball has gotten away from the catcher, has he a right to make an attempt to reach first base, or is he out for running out of the line?

Answers
ONE—The failure of a preceding runner to touch a base shall in no way affect the status of a succeeding runner who has touched each base in its proper order unless two men are out at the time.
TWO—The pitcher's plate shall not made when a base runner legally loses the right to the base he occupies by reason of the batsman becoming a base runner, and he is thereby forced to vacate.

Kinks-o' the Links

In medal play it is possible for a player to have a short putt conceded to him or must the ball be holed out?
In medal play the ball must be holed out on every green.

If in a medal round, if no scorers have been provided by the committee in charge of the tournament, how should the scores be kept in order to insure accuracy?

If no scorers are provided, as is often the case, you should keep the score of your competitor and he should keep yours. After every hole you should compare scores with him.

If your opponent's ball strikes yours through the green or in a hazard and deflects it a considerable distance, what is the proper procedure?

It is perfectly proper to drop your ball where it originally lay, but this must be done before either of you play another stroke.

DEMPSEY MEN ON WAY WEST

Chicago, Ill., May 16.—Human puncher bags for Jack Dempsey started west today to work with the champion in preparation for his title contest with Tom Gibbons at Shelby, Montana, July 4.
Johnny Dempsey, brother of the titleholder departed for Great Falls, Mont., with George Godfrey, a giant negro boxer, and Jack Burke, a light heavyweight, from Pittsburgh.

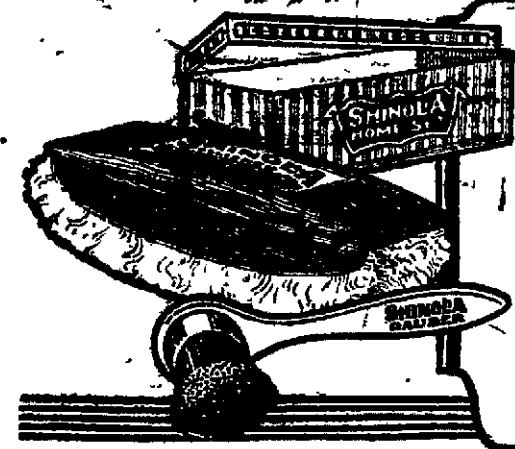

Billy Evans Says

Babe Ruth may or may not break the home-run record during the season of 1923. In order to break it Ruth must make 60 circuit drives. I don't believe that he will be able to set a new mark.

My chief reason for believing that Ruth will not better his record of 59 homers is based on the care with which all pitchers are working on Ruth. Despite the fact that many of the twirlers do not fear Ruth as much as they did a couple of years back most of the managers still have a wholesome respect for Ruth's ability and insist the pitchers use great care in driving them up to Babe.

"The Shine for Mine"

The New York Giants had in slowing up on the big fellow has caused many American League pitchers to adopt the same tactics. The slow ball is a much harder ball to control than the fast one or the curve. Babe is refusing to go after the bad ones as he did in the world series, with the result that he is getting a great many bases on balls. There is one record that he seems certain to break.

As a result of the careful pitching that is being handed Ruth, the big fellow is not hitting home runs with the regularity with which he delivered in other years. Many of the experts are of the opinion that if Ruth doesn't hit home runs the Yankees will be up against a lost cause. I do not concur in such a belief.

Despite the fact that Ruth is not breaking any fences, it strikes me that the big fellow is going to do even more valuable to the Yanks than when he was making home runs. Of course he won't be such a big card with the fans unless he keeps pressing the home-run record, but he is going to be of greater value to his team playing his present style game.

Ruth is lighter than at any time during his major league career. The loss of about 30 pounds has made for more speed and better fielding. Already I have seen Ruth make a half dozen great catches on drives that he would have failed to reach last season. Incidentally, his arm seems stronger than ever and two of the first 10 victories scored by the Yanks were made possible by some fine throwing by Ruth, which cut off the runs needed by the opposition to decide the issue.

Ruth is hitting the ball hard this year. Line drives and hard hit ground balls seem to be his specialty. He isn't getting the distance, but is cracking out doubles and singles instead of home runs. Many of these shorter hits have won for the Yankees.

Breaking the home-run record of 59 is, I fear, too great a task to ask Ruth to perform. He may fall far shy of that mark. Yet failure to do so would not put the Yanks out of the running as many experts seem to think. On the contrary, Ruth playing his present style, which radiates team play, is as valuable, if not more so, than mere slugging as his chief asset. Babe is still a big threat even if he isn't breaking home-run records.

WHO PAID FOR IT?

In an authoritative magazine we read:

"A certain house eight years ago did an annual business of $3,000,000 and the cost of selling the goods amounted to 8 per cent. Good advertising has since then increased their annual business to $15,000,000 and the cost of selling, including advertising expenditures, has fallen to 5 per cent. The salesmen are earning much more money, and the advertising has enabled them to do it, because while their commissions are smaller their sales are made easier and are more than trebled in volume."

Who paid for the advertising?
Not the consumer, for the price of the goods was less than it had been without advertising.
Not the manufacturer, because his total selling cost was 3 per cent less.
Not the salesmen, because they made more money.
Who did pay, then? The same inexhaustible source upon which we draw for the cost of all progress—Old Man Waste.
The most expensive institution we have today is the unsuccessful competitor—the business that drags along for years, eating up rent and salaries, and traveling expenses, trying to get orders that someone else can get and execute better and cheaper.
It is cruel, perhaps, but true that the sooner such concerns disappear, the better it is for the public. The advertising of their more aggressive and better-organized competitors brings the end quicker. And it is the money saved by putting a stop to hordes of these petty, wasteful non-successes, which pays for the advertising and cuts down the cost of the goods you buy.

NEW COMPANY IS LAUNCHED IN BISMARCK

Public Tire Corporation Has Unique Plans of Selling
Auto Tires

PLAN IS EXPLAINED

Contract Is Made With Miller
Rubber Company For Tire Output

That Bismarck is fast becoming a distributing center for automobiles and other commodities is further evidenced by the recent organization here of the Public Tire Corporation. The firm is capitalized at $100,000 under the laws of North Dakota and is backed by Bismarck business men. Bismarck should welcome this new addition to the city's business roster, for it will not only be a big boost to the community, but will enable the public to enjoy the finest sort of service in tire merchandising.

A representative of the firm just returned from an inspection tour of the Akron, Ohio, rubber district and after looking over the field thoroughly, negotiated a contract with the Miller Rubber Co., makers of Miller Tires and tubes. The officers of the Public Tire Corp. feel that they have been fortunate in securing the connections that they have; for it is to be remembered that the Miller Rubber Co. have been manufacturing rubber goods for some forty (40) years past. The fact that Miller tires are used as standard equipment on cars leaving the factory of 26 different pleasure cars and 74 different makes of trucks should speak for itself. Miller tires are to be found on such cars as Packard, Locomobile, Hudson, Essex, Jewett, Velie, Pierce Arrow, Rolls Royce and many others. The Miller Truck tire has been recognized as a leader for some time due to the fact that they have evolved a method of manufacture that only does away with stretching of the fabric and carcass but the tire retains its resiliency almost to the day it is discarded.

The financial standing of the Public Tire Corp. enables them to buy in large quantities and coupled with their unique method of sales, the ultimate cost to the user will be reduced 30 percent. The sales plan is to be carried out thru the certificate method and only holders of certificates will be entitled to buy at the 30 percent reduction. The certificates are now on sale and an active campaign of 10,000 certificate holders is under way. The headquarters of the firm is to be at 216 Main St., in the Elks Bldg., and are being prepared for the first carload of tires to arrive within the next few days. Only tires of a guaranteed first grade will be handled and a pleasing feature to the user is that all adjustments which might be necessary, will be made at the Bismarck office. It is the plan of the officers of the company to establish in the near future, branch offices in Fargo, Grand Forks, Minot and Dickinson in which case deliveries and adjustments will be made at these respective places. This method adopted by the Public Tire Corp., is a new departure in merchandising which will eliminate profits formerly paid by the ultimate consumer to the dealer and jobber, and enable the consumer to virtually buy tires and tubes direct from the manufacturer.

IDEA IS EXPLAINED

A limited number of Bismarck and Burleigh county boys have the opportunity of attending a free summer camp at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, during the month of August. The Rotary club of Bismarck has been commissioned to obtain and to list applicants for the training camp for Bismarck and Burleigh county. An equal number will be selected from the city and from Burleigh county to attend the camp, the exact number not being known by the Rotary club committee as yet. Ages of applicants must be from 17 to 24 years. The Rotary club will designate committees in several communities in the county. One of the three men on these committees, it is hoped by the local committee, will be the superintendent of schools. The Rotary club committee handling the matter is composed of Judge W. L. Nuesle, Supt. C. O. Saxvig, Dr. E. P. Quinn, J. L. Bell and C. L. Young.

Information and application forms may be secured from members of this committee or by applying to Ray Bergeson, secretary of the Rotary club, and applications should be made in the next few days.

Everything at the camp is free, including transportation, food, uniforms and medical care, the camps being conducted at various army posts in the country by the War Department.

Applicants to the Citizens Military Training Camps from North and South Dakota and Minnesota will train at Fort Snelling.

"The object of these camps is to bring together young men of high type from all sections of the country on a common basis of equality and under the most favorable conditions of outdoor life," says an announcement of the purpose of the camps, "to stimulate and promote citizenship, patriotism, and Americanism; and through expert physical direction, athletic coaching, and military training, to benefit the young men individually and bring them to realize their obligations to their country."

Four different courses are offered, the "basic red course," and the "advanced red," "white" and "blue" courses. The first named provides preliminary military training, including physical development, athletics, school of soldier, squad and company drill, rifle marksmanship, camp sanitation, personal hygiene, military courtesy, meaning of discipline, and studies in citizenship. The advance red course provides training in infantry, field artillery, and cavalry, etc. The white course is for the purpose of qualifying selected enlisted men as future army officers. The blue course will offer higher training, with educational requirements for appointment as second lieutenants in the officers' reserve corps.

BABY BURNS

IN OWN HOME

Minot, N. D., May 16.—Glen Nelson, 2-year-old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nelson of Burlington, N. D., was burned to death yesterday at Burlington, when his clothing became ignited from a kerosene stove. The child with a celluloid comb in its hands, was playing on the floor when the mother stepped out side and it is believed he approached the stove which ignited the inflammable comb in his hand.
